Colonel Livingston will not enter the race for governor-that he announces. He will make the race against Judge Stewart for congress. He will probably make the formal announcement of that fact at Decatur, where he speaks on next Tuesday.

That letter was addressed to Messrs. W. A. Starnes and Thomas E. Winn, presidents of the Fulton County and Gwinnett County alliances, respectively.

The Fulton County alliance had, it will be remembered, passed resolutions demanding of Colonel Livingston that he be a candidate for governor, while the Gwinnett alliance had warmly endorsed him for the same high po-

The letter was written for the Southern Alliance Farmer, Editor Brown's official organ of the Georgia alliance, and will appear in that paper next Monday. A Constitution representative was, however, permitted to read the letter and gather its contents. Colonel Livingston declines to run. He thanks the members of the alliance one and all for their many flattering references to himself and for the tender of their support; then he gives two reasons for his declination:

First-"To be successful we (the alliance) must be harmonious."

Second-"As president of the state alliance, it is my duty to go where I can serve my peo-

He mentions no names in connection with that the alliance support shall be given to Colonel Northen.

And he says nothing about being a candidate for congress, but his second reason given above covers the whole ground.

A Conference of Alliancemen.

For the past two weeks there has been much talk in the state about a split in the alliance in Georgia, and the probable candidacy of Cole nel Livingston in opposition to Colonel Northen. The apparent breach seemed to widen, and after Colonel Northen's speech in Thomson, and the reply by Captain Brown, editor of the Southern Alliance Farmer, the split seemed to be a certainty. A great many dark horses began to feel good, and expected to be brought in the race on the home stretch.

But it seems that in the past few days the leading alliancemen in the state have been hard at work to prevent the split, which would have undoubtedly defeated their candidate for governor. Had the fight between Colonel Northen and Colonel Livingston continued, there is not a particle of doubt that it would have resulted in beating both candidates.

Colonel Northen was preparing a letter, in response to the article copied in The Constitution from The Southern Alliance Farmer, when he received a letter from Hon. W. L. Peek, president of the alliance exchange, asking a conference.

Colonel Northen promptly responded to the request and came to Atlanta a few days ago, and here the conference was held. All the differences were talked over freely by the alliancemen, and it was deter mined that they would pool their issues and insist on Colonel Northen as their candidate for governor. When Colonel Northen left day before yesterday, matters were left in this condition for the approval of Colonel Livingston on his return from southwest Georgia. Colonel Livingston returned yesterday, and after a full conferen with the parties who have conferred with Colonel Northen, he agreed to the proposition, and wrote the letter spoken of above.

A Letter From Colonel Northen. THE CONSTITUTION received from Colone Northen yesterday the following letter touching this matter: KOITORS CONSTITUTION: I am in receipt of a letter from Colonel W. L. Peck, president of the alliance exchange for this state, asking me to meet him and other alliancemen in the city of Atlanta and to stop anything that tends to divide or disand to stop anything that tends to divide or dis-tract our people until after this conference.

At the request of Colonel Peek, and carnestly desiring myself to maintain harmony in the alli-ance and the democratic party, I have desisted from saying anything in reply to the editorial copied from the Southern Alliance Farmer into THE CONSTRICTION.

I have met Colonel Peek and Mr. Brown, the editor of The Southern Alliance Farmer, and others, and had with them the conference sought. Colonial Research nei Peek, in the presence of these gentlemen, did me the honor to say that, in his opinion, my efforts, for the last several years, in the interests of the farmers of Georgia, deserved the highest commendation at the hands of the people of the State, and that my work in the interests of the alliance met his hearty endorsement and approval.

Colonel Peek and I both expressed great regret that there should have been any misunderstanding on this matter that would tend to discussion or division in the alliance and democratic party.

Mr. Brown, the editor of The Alliance Farmer, now agrees with the expressions made by Colonel Peek.

As to Colonel Hardeman.

A friend of Colonel Hardeman stated yesterday, that he would not be a candidate for governor, and that while his friends might possibly vote for him, he had not officially an-nounced his candidacy and would not. It is altogether probable that he also will support Colonel Northen. Colonel Livingston, Colonel Peek and the Southern Alliance Farmet, which is the organ of the alliance in the state, are going to give their hearty support to Colonel Northen. This will be a great acquisition to him at this time, as much was anticipated in their opposition to-defeat both candidates and let in an outside Colonel Livingston's announcement for congress will come later, probably on Tuesday, when he is to speak at the meeting of the alliancemen and citizens at Decatur. Colonel Northen will probably be present then, as will Colonel Peek, Captain Harry Brown and other prominent alliancemen.

Colonel Livingston Talks.

"Yes, it is true that I have written such a letter," said Colonel Livingston. It is to appear in the next issue of the Southern Alliance Farmer, and will explain fully my posi-tion. I am not a candidate for governor. My highest aim is to benefit the farmer, and I believe our organization furnishes the best means of benefitting them. 'In all things essential, unity,' is the alliance motto, and it is that spirit which prompts me to make the approprement I have made." the announcement I have made. 'Then you think the alliance will support

Colonel Northen?"
"Undoubtedly. Colonel Northen, we are given to understand, stands squarely for the alliance and alliance principles, and there is no doubt in my mind of his receiving the solid vote of the order. Certainly the state alliance will give him the heartiest support." "What about other possible candidates?"

"The papers have mentioned several gentle men. While I have no authority to speak for any of them, I feel safe in saying that Colonel Northen will have no opposition what-"You're right there," said Captain Harry Brown. "Your action, colonel, clears the way for Colonel Northen. He will have not only the hearty support of the alliance, but he will have no opposition whatever." Colonel Livingston refused to talk about his candidacy against Judge Stewart.

It is known that since Colonel Livingston's address before the ways and means committee at Washington, there has been a growing dis-position and determination on the part of alliancemen in and out of the state-including the officers of the National Alliance, officers of many of the state alliances, with the governorship, but it is evident he means prominent outside citizens from every section date for congress, it being urged that there was the proper field for his usefulness. This pressure has had much to do with his determination to decline gubernatorial honors, as well as the desire to promote harmony and unity in the order.

"And that determination," was the com ment of a prominent allianceman, "has made Colonel Livingston even stronger with the farmers than ever before—if that is possible."

Colonel Northen in Houston. FORT VALLEY, Ga., June 6.-[Special.]-Colonel Northen spoke here this afternoon to quite a respectable audience, and his address was well spoken of even by the sensible Hardeman men who were present. His course was manly and straightforward in answering some of the charges made against him, and he eulogized Colonel Hardeman in the highest degree. He said he had no charges to make against him, save that if he was elected governor of Georgia it would look too much like putting the government into the hands of one family, and that it did seem to him that the many eligible men in the state, the people could select all the state officers without giving two to one family. Colonel Northen was dignified nd extremely respectful in all of his allusions to Colonel Hardeman. He made several allusions to himself as to what he had done for Georgia from his labors in the school-room up to the present time, as he had no one present to tell the people of his acts for him, but was extremely modest in them, which captivated all his hearers. Colonel Northen assured the people that he prayed God that he might be able to finish his canvas, and at the day of the election even if he was defeated, he wanted it to be said that Northen went through the campaign, and came out with clean hands and are going to stand by him.

Killed by a Pencil. Killed by a Pencil.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 6.—[Special.]— Joshua Lacy, a farmer who lives a fow miles from this city, met with a peculiar accident yesterday which cost him his life. He fell from a scaffold with a pencil in his mouth.
The sharpened point of the pencil stuck in his throat inside, and a piece of the lead broke off.
It seemed a very slight injury, and Lacy returned to work, but during the night swelling and hemorrhage set in, and this morning the man died. Physicians say the lead in the pencil poisoned the man's blood and caused death.

THE VILLAINOUS BILL

FOR THE CORRUPTION OF ELECTIONS.

WHICH CABOT LODGE IS TRYING TO HAVE PASSED

He Claims That its Provisions Will Be it Will Then Be Passed.

Washington, June 6.—[Special.]—"You may put it down that this congress will pass a national election law," said Henry Cabot Lodge today, as he removed the dust from his russet shoes with a white silk handkerchief.

Then shoving his red and white striped tennis shirt beneath the folds of a blue sash, and inserting his hands into the pockets of one of Wanamaker's most stylish tan silk coats, he continued:

WHAT THE BILL MEANS. "We did not decide upon the particular measure to be passed at last evening's caucus, sider some of the points to go in such a measure. We shall, however, decide upon the measure next Tuesday evening, and soon thereafter it will be passed by the house. There are three main features to be included in the bill. The first and third we have decided upon, but the second is still open. They

"First. Supervision of registration by United States officers. That is, the government will take the matter of registration for presidential and congressional elections out of the hands of the states where they have state laws now, and will provide laws for the states that have none. It will all be in the hands of federal officers.

"Second. Certainly the supervision of elec-tions and probably absolute federal control. This latter is the point we have not yet de-cided upon, but that will be determined on Tuesday evening. "Third. The certification of elections by United States officers instead of state officers. These will be the main points of the bill, and with such a bill we are going to have fair elections in the south and all over the country, and with fair elections we will continue to hold a majority in congress."

ANOTHER OPINION. As Mr. Lodge retired to the hall of the house, Representative Ewart, a republican from North Carolina, approached the door on the run to escape some constituents who wanted to know why he and his party had not carried out their pledges to repeal the entire to-

"No," said he, as he stopped and drew a long breath of relief, "we are not going to pass a national election law unless there is a very decided change of sentiment on the republican side between now and next Tuesday. It will simply be a supervisory system, or a strength-ening of the present law, but I don't think it will amount to anything. It will probably be practically inoperative like the law which now exists."

AN ENCOURAGING REPORT Of the Business Outlook-Review by R. G. Dun & Co.

NEW YORK, June 6.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

All indications regarding legitimate busines All indications regarding legitimate business continue encouraging. At the same time there is a renewal of speculative excitement, based on the prospect that the silver bill will speedily pass both houses, and in such a form that executive approval can be expected. It is difficult, at times, to distinguish between merely speculative and more substantial improvement, but in this instance there is no room to doubt that conditions are improving for the productive industries, and for legitimate trade. Crop prospects have brightened wonderfully. The general average of prices has not been affected much as yet, but has turned upward, and manufactured products, with breadstuffs, show a general tendency to advance. Re ports from other cities are, almost without exception, favorable. The great industries show clearly a general tendency toward improve ment. In iron weakness appears nowhere, while an advance in many quotations is reported, and the marking down of anthracite No. 1 to $18 by the Thomas company is but a formal recognition of prices for the time current. Large sales of steel rails are reported, amounting to 30,000 tons, with $30.50 quoted here as the minimum. Con suming works continue so fully employed, and stocks of pig-iron are believed to be so light, that fear of a further decline during the hot months, in which many furnaces close for repairs, has abated.

Wool manufactures do not improve so clearly. Cotton manufactures continue fairly active; and the decline in raw cotton during the week has helped a little. The speculative markets are generally stronger, though cotton has fallen over \(^3_{\text{o}}\), with sales at \(^340,000\) bales.

The money market has been variable, the treasury having taken in about \(^3_{\text{1}}\), \(^{0}0,000\) more than it paid out. Exports from New York in May show an increase of 10\(^3_{\text{o}}\) per cent. over last year, and though the increase in imports was about \(^9_{\text{o}}\) per cent. there has been only moderate realizing by foreigners on American securities, and the rate of a cent. In short, the monetary prospect in all parts of the country is favorable to business activity.

Business failures last week number, for the United States, 17\(^3_{\text{o}}\); Canada, twenty-six. For the corresponding week last year the figures were, 200 failures in the United States and twenty-five in Canada.

FIREMEN SEVERELY BURNED.

Twelve Barrels of Gasoline Explode at a Philadelphia Fire. PHILADELPHIA, June 6 .- While firemen engaged this afternoon in extinguishing a fire small building of the Penn Globe and Gaslight company, the flames reached the storage basin in which were twelve barrels of gasoline. A terrific explosion followed, and gasonne. A terrine explosion followed, and eleven firemen were caught in a shower of burning oil and were badly burned. The men were at once removed to the Episcopal hospital. Some of them will probably die from their injuries. The fire is said to have originated from a spark from the pipe of a careless amploye.

LUMBER AND MACHINERY DESTROYED. NORFOLE, Va. June 6.—At Suffolk this morning fire entirely consumed H. W. Bradlumber, together with all the tools and ma-chinery. The loss is about $40,000; insurance $11,500. Six cars of the Norfolk and Western Railroad company were also destroyed.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

New York, June 6.—Cotton opened a little easier under dull accounts from Liverpool and Manchester and a general loss of confidence on the part of bulls, but "long" cotton did not come out quite so freely as was expected, and there was a recovery of three points for this crop. The market again relapsed into dullness, but closed steady. Private advices from Liverpool were weaker than the published accounts, representing that the holders of spot cotton are quite auxious about their position. The early blooming of cotton reported from Mississippi seems to assure pretty full supplies of new cotton in August. The outurn of the crop to the first of June (Chronicle figures) amounted to 7,000,335 bales, showing that about 40,000 bales came in sight in May. Cotton on spot was 1-16 lower, and more active for home consumption.

TILLMAN'S AMBITION

TO SUCCEED WADE HAMPTON IN THE UNITED STATES SENATE.

CAUTIOUS MOVEMENTS OF THE PARTY

nator Butler Reaches Home and Express Disapprobation of a Movement Which May Split the Whites.

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 6.—[Special.]—It is announced that if Captain Benjamin R. Tilman, the farmers' candidate for governor, is elected, that he will be a candidate for senator against General Wade Hampton, whose term will expire at the next session of the legislature. As the majority of the legislators are followers of Tillman, there is no doubt of his being able to defeat the "Leader of '76." For this reason, the Tillman party is moving this reason, the Tillman party is moving very cautiously in its selection of a candidate for lieutenant-governor.

This officer is generally the most unimportant, but in view of the probability of his stepping into the gubernatorial chair, six months after election, the Tillman party is holding it for the work index after the state. for the most influential man who will appreci ate the possibilities. This party is finding it difficult to satisfy its most prominent leaders with the promise of office. The offices are many times too few for the leaders who want them, and as several are fighting for the nomination to the same office, there is great danger of dis-cord in the ranks of the farmers' movement

SENATOR BUTLER'S VIEWS. Senator M. C. Butler came from Washington yesterday, and made an address at a college commencement. Both Senator Hampton and himself are apposed to the movement under Tillman, and Senator Butler yesterday expressed his disapprobation of the turn affairs had taken. He is fearful that a split in the democrats will result in republican success. Both senators from this state favor the union of farmers for the purpose of bettering their condition, but oppose the Tillman movement, which they regard as dangerous.

A SILVER CHAMPION. ienator Plumb Gives Some Figures as to the Washington, June 6.—Mr. Platt presented a petition from the tobacco growers and dealers of the Housatonic Valley, Conn., in favor of a specific duty of not less than $2 per pound on imported wrappers. Referred to the finance committee.

A new conference was ordered on the dependent pension bill and Messrs, Davis, Sawyer and Blodgett were appointed conferees on the part of the senate. The silver bill was taken up and Mr. Plumb addressed the senate. He confessed that his hope for the passage of the part of the senate. The silver bill was taken up and Mr. Plumb addressed the senate. He confessed that his hope for the passage of the bill at the present session had not grown by the performance of the last two or three weeks. There were two questions involved—one as to the volume of currency, and the other as to what currency should consist of. There seemed to be a general concensus of opinion that the volume of currency should be increased. He declared that the circulation today was $240,000,000 less than the framers of financial legislation of 1875 anticipated, although the commercial business of the country had doubled within that time. There were varying estimates of the outstanding circulation. His own estimate was that, deducting the amounts held in the treasury and in the national banks for reserve purposes, the total amount which the people of the United States had for the transaction of daily business could not exceed $600,000,000. He believed that it was $500,000,000, and upon that narrow foundation had been built an enormous structure of credit, propped up here and there by devices of various kinds, and kept swelling and growing, while the base on which it rested did not grow in prepore. and there by devices of various kinds, and kept swelling and growing, while the base on which it rested did not grow in proportion to the structure. The senator from New York (Mr. Hiscock) had yesterday described the great wealth and prosperity of the country, but, if this picture were true, why was it, Mr. Plumb asked, that the senator and his committee (the finance committee) were "piling up protective duties?" If there was such financial health and soundness and prosperity, why not let tariff alone, and let the financial system of the country alone? His idea was that not only should the vacancy of national bank circulation be made up, without charge, but there ought to be added to that at national bank circulation be made up, without charge, but there ought to be added to that at least as much as would result from the free coinage of silver. He was willing to abandon his ideas in favor of fiat money, and to widen the case of the credit structure by adding to it all the silver that the United States mints could turn out.

all the silver that the United States mints could turn out.

Mr. Plumb went on to speak of the silver bill in connection with the question of protection. The senate had been appealed to yesterday by the senator from New York (Mr. Hiscock) against the bill in the name of protection. He would not call it fetich, although he did not know what he would call it before he got through, but in its name the senate was asked to keen silver dethrough. Silver was an asked to keep silver dethroned. Silver was an American product—a much larger product than many others which were to be protected by duties of 200 or 300 per cent under the coming tariff bill. He would like to ask the senator from New York, who was so anxious about feeding compared what he introduct about foreign commerce, what he intended to do with a tariff bill which would prevent the United States from having any foreign commerce. He hoped that he might interpret the senator's remarks on that point as a hopeful augury of the action of that senator in putting his knife into the bill now before the finance committee bill, which senator in putting his knife into the bill now before the finance committee bill, which would raise the price of nearly everything used by the masses of the people.

Mr. Hiscock explained that the point of his argument was that, if imports were diminished, it did not follow, as a matter of course, that the export trade would be diminished. If the United States could place on the markets of the world what it had to sell, and could compete with other producers, the nations would buy it, and, just to the extent that the United States did not take foreign products in exchange for what it experted, would the balance of the trade, in favor of the United States, be increased; and gold would come in to pay these balances.

The bill was laid aside.

TAKES HIS COAT OFF. entative Walker Grows Very Warm

Representative Walker Grows Very Warm
Over the Currency Question.

Washingtox, June 6.—The silver debate was resumed by the house this morning, Mr. Lind, of Mihnesota, being the first speaker. Commenting on the three measures before the house, he said that the treasure bill was the most objectionable. Under a friendly secretary it might be made useful in increasing the volume of currency; but under an unfriendly secretary it might be dangerous. Personally, he believed that the free coinage bill presented not only the best, but the quickest way to settle the whole question. But he believed that it was best to yield something even to prejudice, if by so doing legislation almost equally efficacions, and less objectionable to some classes, could be secured. Such a measure was the republican caucus bill.

Mr. Flower, of New York, confined his remarks not to the silver question, but to the constitutional amendment relegating to the people, within prescribed localities, the choice of such administrative officials whose functions of office lie entirely within a prescribed area, and whose choice is of consequence only to the people whom they immediately serve.

Mr. Lacey, of Iowa, advocated the caucus allver bill. It was a free-coinage measure, because it provided that when silver was at par the mints should be open to free coinage. The country needed an expansion of currency in a safe way, and this bill provided for it.

Mr. Walker, of Massachusetts, referred to the argument that there was business de-pression because of low prices. There was not a word of truth in it. There was not a solitary fact that justified the statements made in favor a word of truth in it. There was not a solitary fact that justified the statements made in favor of free coinage—not one. It was said that the farmers were oppressed, and there were men on the floor who enjoyed "burning corn" when the fact was that there never was a day since the sun shone on the earth when a farmer could pay off a debt on his farm with as few days work as be could today. He asserted that the demonstization of silver was not the cause of the decrease of prices. Prices had been going down for a hundred years. The demonetization of silver had not had the slightest appreciable effect on the depreciation of prices. More money meant more misery. [Laughter.]

Mr. Perkins, of Kansas—We all love misery. [Laughter.]

misery. [Laughter.]

Mr. Perkins, of Kansas—We all love misery.
[Laughter.]

Mr. Walker said that money could only be used in limited amounts. A sufficiency was enough. Money was like a railroad. You could not use a railroad beyond the needs of the freight desired to be transported upon it. When you had done that, you had used the railroad to its fullest extent and it was no longer necessary. And so it was with money. Money had no place in economics; it was an incident to economics. You might destroy all the gold and silver in the world tonight and wake up in the morning and the world would not be hurt one iota. It was an absolute disgrace to the house to hear the rot that was talked here, and he had talked some of it himself. He was going to vote for the pending bill because he knew that the members of the house from 1868, up to the present time, for the purpose of getting back here, had urged and encouraged the people in their folly until they had come to such a state of mind that something must be done or they would break the members up. [Laughter.]

It was pure politics; that was all about it. In the course of an argument to show that there was sufficient gold in the world to supply the money demand, he was frequently interrupted by Mr. Payson, of Illinois, Mr. Heard, of Missouri, and others. The energy of his replies, taken in connection with the heat of the day, was too much for Mr. Walker; and, much to the merriment of the house, he doffed his coat, and proceeded with his speech in his shirt sleeves.

Mr. Blount contended that silver demoneti-

MAJOR BARNES ON THE QUESTION.

Mr. Barnes, of Georgia, expressed his regret that the cries for relief, which came up from all over the country, should be stifled by party caucus action. He had no doubt that if a vote were allowed upon it a large majority would be found in favor of the free coinage bill. He argued that the demonetization of silver was the cause of the depression in the prices of farm products. He argued that the universal distress throughout Christendom showed a universal cause, which could only farm products. He argued that the universal distress throughout Christendom showed a universal cause, which could only be found in the demonetization of silver, both in America and Europe, and that, as a consequence, the true remedy was in free coinage and that when the United States adopted a system of free coinage, the continental nations of Europe would follow its expense.

nental nations of Europe would follow its example.

Mr. Wheeler, of Alabama, asserted that except in money centers there was suffering and distress all over our land; that for twenty-five years, financial questions had been controlled in congress by Wall street in a manner destructive to the rights and prosperity of the people at large. In 1869, congress enacted laws which required the payment of currency bonds in coin, which robbed the people of nearly a billion of dollars. Congress then provided that four per cents and four and a half per cent bonds should be paid in coin, and the moment silver fell so as to be relatively less valuable than gold they demonetized silver, so as to compel the people to pay the less valuable than gold they demonetized silver, so as to compel the people to pay the bonds in the dearest metal. The bill being considered is a sham and a fraud. It is a shameful surrender of the rights of the people to Wall street, and the republican party will be held responsible for it. [Applause.] Other speakers were Messrs. Parrott. of Indiana, a bi-metallist; Ellis, of Kentucky, who held that the pending bill as completely demonetized silver as did the law of 1873; Burton, of Ohio; Lane, of Illinois; Shively, of Indiana; Wickham, of Ohio; Montgomery, of Kentucky; Holman, Heard and others.

TINKERING THE TARIFF.

The Senate Finance Committee on the Metals

Washington, June 6.—Work on the tariff bill was resumed today by the republican members of the senate finance committee, and members of the senate finance committee, and when recess was taken at 1:30 it was announced that schedules, including chemicals, oils, paints and earths, earthen-ware, china and glass-ware had been completed and that copies of them would be ready for the consideration of the democratic members of the committee tomorrow morning. This afternoon the metals schedule was taken up with a view to completing it before proceeding to discuss other sections of the bill. It is believed that none of the changes made in the house bill in the two schedules so far are radical in their nature or extent.

the two schedules so far are radical in their nature or extent.

It is not known that the reductions of duty made in the two schedules are more numerons than the increase. Details are well guarded by members of the committee.

Before the committee formally began work today, Representative Farquhar made an argument in behalf of the maltsters of Oswego, N. Y. They want a reduction of duty on barley from thirty cents a bushel, as proposed in the McKinley bill, to fifteen cents a bushel, which is five cents more than the present rate.

THE PAPERS SENT IN.

IN COMPLIANCE WITH SENATOR CALL'S RESOLUTION.

IN REGARD TO THE OUTRAGES

At Cedar Keys-The Federal Officials Complain That No Aid Was Given Them in Their Search For the Mayor.

Washingron, June 6.—The president sent to the senate today, in response to the resolution of May 26, requesting information concerning the alleged landing of an armed force from the United States revenue cutter "McLane" at Cedar Keys, Fla., and the alleged entry of houses of citizens by force, and their alleged pursuit of citizens of the United States in the surrounding country, a letter containing what he describes as all the information possessed by the executive department relating to the matters inquired about. "It will be observed, says the president, "that the United States collector of customs at Cedar Keys had been driven from his office and from the town, and the administration of the customs laws of the United States at that port

You might destroy all the superintendent to the control of the co compilmented upon several occasions for the unostentatious and orderly manner in con-ducting what we conceived to be a most pain-ful duty—but the rabble will talk and bluster?

The reports of Captain Smythe, of the Mc-Lane, and Captain J. H. Pinkerton, collector at Cedar Keys, agree with the reports that have been published. Pinkerton says: I had heard that Cottrell said that United States Attorney Strippling would not presecute him, as they were particular friends, and I must say that Strippling discouraged my action in the matter, and advised me to wait until Cottrell made a further demonstration, and then take a gun and shoot him if he interfered.

Several Persons Killed by Lightning—Sudd Floods and Bad Wash-outs. WASHINGTON, June 6 .- Today's dispatch chronicle a remarkable number of atmos disturbances, those in each locality apparently independent of any other extending over a great stretch of country, but not forming a general storm. The features are terrific thunder storms, drenching rains, hail and violent winds. winds.

At several places, one or more persons were killed by lightning; sudden floods have torm out mill-dams and caused wash-outs on railroads, from which half a dozen accidents to trains have resulted. These incidents are reported throughout the entire country from Nebraska and Iowa to northern New York and Canada. The heaviest damage in any one spot is reported from the neighborhood of Hamilton and Toronto, Canada.

Fills an Appointment in Covington, in Which He Claims That Only Reasonable Profits Should Be Detated.

Covencion, Gs., June 6.—[Special.]—In accordance with an appointment published on yesterday, Hon. John D. Stewart spoke here at 11 o'clock today.

Owing to the very short notice given of the

Owing to the very short notice given of the appointment, there was not a very large erowd in attendance.

The speaker was introduced by Captain J. M. Pace, and was greeted with hearty applaise. It was thought that he would give his views in regard to the ment of the sub-treasury bill, and discuss its probable effects in case of its passage; but instead of doing this, he took the position that there was no possibility of its passage, and urged in support of his proposition that, even if it would benefit the classes in whose interest it was framed, those classes whom it would est it was framed, those classes whom it would not benefit would oppose and defeatit; that, owing to the bitterness of congressmen of other sections toward the people of the south, if southern congressmen should combine in advocacy of the bill, this fact alone would insure opposition to it as a southern measure and effect its certain defeat, and that even if it could pass the house of representatives, it would never pass the senate so long as it remains as it now is. He further urged that we should be patient, strive only for such legislation as we may reasonably hope to obtain, and especially avoid basing our hopes of relief from the burdens now resting on us upon any one legislative measure. His idea was that southern congressmen snould make the best possible use of the means at their command, and with those means do all in their power to accom-plish results that would inure to the benefit of

In conclusion, he stated that the prime cause of the evils which the agricultural interests of the country have had to endure is to be found in the unjust, bur-densome and iniquitous tariff system of the republican party, and that the only hope of relief from the oppression which this cause has produced will be found in the preservation and altimate predominancy of the time-honored principles of democracy.

The speech was well received and made a fine impression on those who heard it. In the course of his remarks the speaker negatived the idea that has been entertained by some that the southern congressmen were unwilling to even consider the sub-treasury bill, and stated that they proposed taking that and all other proposed measures for relief into careful consideration with a view to obtaining the best possible results.

HARDEMAN'S HAT.

The Honorable Gentleman is Going to Stand in With the Farmers.

Macon, Ga., June 6.—[Special.]—They can say what they please about the Hon. Thomas Hardeman's candidacy, but something is up. For the past few days he has walked the streets of Macon with his brainy old head shaded by one of the most inoffensive and acceptable hats wern in the most uncompromising agricultural section of any state. It is a plain, every-day planters' hat; just such a hat as the farmer likes to see and one that could but meet with the approbation of either the alliance or the agricultural society.

Up to a few weeks ago a handsome silk has adorned the gentleman and this was laid away only to give place to a more seasonable white plug, but now it's an uncompromising farmer's hat. The Hon. Thomas Hardeman, of Bibb, may yet be the governor of Georgia.

They are True Democrats.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., June 6 .- [Special.] The men selected by the alliance of this county to the democratic party of this county to elect as members of the legislature, ar true and tried democrats. They are both as well qualified as any member who has represented this county in eight years. They are good men. Mr. Peeples is a brother of Cap-tain T. M. Peeples and don't sell for what he is worth. He is a quiet but strong man. Mr. N. Bennett is one of the largest planters of the county, and will make an exceedingly respectacounty, and will make an exceedingly respectable member. The majority of the voters in this county are evidently for Winn for congress. The County alliance has unanimously endorsed him. If he can't be nominated by the convention, Judge N. L. Hutchins or Judge T. M. Peeples will be the second choice.

While Livingston secured the recommendation of the County alliance for governor, Northen is very strong before the people certainly as between the two.

Hardeman is supported by some, and his name was strongly suggested by the Gwinnett Herald. Mayor Tom Glenn has many friends here who would like to see him governor.

"I do. Up to two weeks ago I told my friend, Colonel Ingram, that if he would run I would not. I have been to the legislature two terms, and have thereby neglected my growing law practice. I did not care to run again, but I have been solicited by representative men in every district in the county to make the race, and I have consented to do so as Mr. McRae declined to enter the race because of the ill health of his father. I will get as many alliance votes as any other man that runs."

Politics in Forsyth County.

CUMMING, Ga., June 6.—[Special.]—The political pot is beginning to simmer in this county. It is believed Northen is still the choice here for governor. The race for congressman for the ninth is considerably mixed between Brown, Pickett, Tate and Winn. As to the legislative race it is mixed even worse, with the woods full of candidates. Among those mentioned for the race are Bell, Brown, Foster, Pirkle, Riden, Heard and Cunningham—and several districts yet to hear from.

Indicted by the Grand Jury.

RALEIGH, N. C., June 6.—[Special.]—In the United States circuit court here this afternoon the grand jury returned a true bill against R. S. Barham, J. H. Wood, J. Grant, Alex Boone and Henry Jackson, democratic judges of election in West Roanoke township, Northampton county, at the last general election. They are charged with making false returns by certifying that H. P. Cheatham received no votes for congress, whereas it is alleged in the indictment that he received many votes.

General Whack Bailey to Get up One

From the Athens Banner.

A gentleman in Athens yesterday received the following letter from General Whack Bailey, well known in Athens. Will you enter the contest?

SAULSBURY, N. C., May 31.—Dear Sir: Two long hours to kill time, awaiting the Richmond and Danville railroad south-bound express, which I have lost, three years of my life in the past eighteen, at stations, looking up and down the railroad, wishing and wanting the train to come. I am all broke up this morning: arrived here at midnight, and as usual, was put next to a snoring man. Just my luck. My nerves can stand anything else.

During my torture of hours an idea struck me. I would get up a snoring match this fall. Three prizes. First one. $1,000; second, $560; third, $250, to be held in some city of Georgia, open to the world. Admission tickets, twenty-five cents. You will please let me know if you have any good ones in your city or county, or if any lady wishes to enter her husband for the prize. I would like to secure a few fine ones. Can snore when he then breathes back—comes a whistle sound, back action. They are very scarce and desirable. Will have a very large room, and numerous beds. I am anxious to select one judge from your city. My best wishes to all the boys. Wishing you mighty well I remain as ever, yours very truly, Whack Barley.

THE EXPOSITION AT COLUMBUS. The Queen City of the Chattahoochee is Arranging a Grand Show.

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 6.—[Special.]—Arrangements for the Chattahoochee Valley exposition are progressing rapidly and new plans are developed each day. Mr. E. T. Byington, of the Evening Ledger, is one of the exposition directors, and is interesting himself in what will be known as the densyment of tion directors, and is interesting himself in what will be known as the department of "Relics of Ye Olden Time," and contributions are being made at a lively rate.

This morning Captain J. J. Slade, president of the exposition company, placed in the hands of Mr. Schomburg for repairs, a small bell that has a history. Away back in the golden long ago this bell was one of a set of three that formed one of the arches of bells that were used in those days on the headgear of horses. For more than forty years it was used by Captain Slade and his father as a school bell. Mr. Schomburg will polish it up and engrave it and it will be placed among the exposition curiosities.

AFTER FOUR YEARS

An Incendiary Is Put in Prison for His Crime.

THOMASVILLE. Ga., June 6.-[Special.]-Four years ago the residence of Mr. D. T. Forest, near what is now the town of Metcalfe, was burned. Jack Jones, colored, was suspected of the crime, but the evidence against him was not strong enough to warrant his ar-rest. Some weeks ago detectives were put on the case, and the result was his arrest a few days ago. He has waived preliminary trial, and now, after many days, justice is about to

By heroic efforts the hotel was saved, though it caught fire several times. The loss is not heavy. The origin of the fire is unknown.

GANTT WONT RUN,

BUT HE HAS A LITTLE PEPPER FOR MR. OLIVE.

Ridicules the Idea of a Candi Running For a Federal Office on a State Bone.

ATHENS, Ga., June 6.—[Special.]—Mr. T. L. Gantt will not enter the race for congress L. Gantt will not enter the race for congress in the eighth, and in the Banner of tomorrow he gives his reasons for declining the race. He has been urged by a large number of friends to make the race, and has received strong requests from large numbers of alliancemen. His answer is one of manly and outspoken fearlessness. He states in the outset that he is now, as ever, an organized democrat, of rock-ribbed nature, and his only ambition is to be of service to his party and he stands ready to aid her in any fight she may call upon him to aid her in any fight she may call upon him to enter, and will give his best efforts in her behalf. He states that he is for the farmer all the time, and outlines his defense of the sub-treasury bill in a clear and concise man-

He has this to say in reference to his race for congress:
It would be false and hypocritical for me to say that I do not feel flattered by the mention of my name in connection with congressional honors. I am but human and endowed with my full share of pride and ambition. It would be a distinction and an honor to any man to be chosen to represent such a constituency as comprise the voters of the eighth congressional district, and I do not believe that there is a man within our borders but who would accept with pride and pleasure this high honor if tendered him. But I am neither a politician nur an office-seeker, and there is no position within the gift of the American people, if it be necessary to enter into a heated and personal campaign to secure it. I have never hesitated to engage in politics when the success of my party was at stake, but I will not do so, for personal promotion.

THE OLIVE BILL. He has this to say in reference to his race THE OLIVE BILL.

He touches up the Olive bill in strong lan-

THE OLIVE RILL.

He touches up the Olive bill in strong language as follows:

The Olive bill is not an issue in the congressional campaign, and it is an insult to the intelligence of the farmers of this district to try and make it so. The Georgia legislature and the congress of the United States are two separate and distinct bodies, and it is nonsensical and childish to try and make a national campaign on local issues. If a congressman earnestly desires to protect his people against the arbitrary powers of railroads, he can do a great and needed work by advocating an amendment to the interstate railroad commission bil, requiring railways all over the United States to charge the same proportionate rates for a short haul as they do for a long one. The bill now leaves this optional with the commissioners, and it should be made obligatory. This will protect the smaller towns and rural districts, and prevent the building up of a few large cities at the expense of the country.

This change is within the province of congress to make, but under the constitution, that body has no power to interfere in the local affairs of Georgia, and no true and patriotic democrat wants to see such arbitrary authority givgn. I am in hearty accord with the resolution of the farmers of Georgia in the railroad issue. I want to see the powers of our state commission strengthened and extended so as to embrace telegraph and express companies as well as railways. I advocate also the passage of a bill requiring all railroads in Georgia before it sells to or combines with another line, to first secure the consent of the commissioners, and if this consent is refused and a road persists in forming a combination that will imperil the rights of the people of the people, and at the same time insure to capitalists, who invest their money in our midstation that their property will be protected. Let Georgia show to the world that she can enforce her laws without resorting to the extreme measures of forfeiting charters or confiscating property, I also w their official acts.

This leaves an important factor out of the race, as he would have made a strong and vigorous race. There is no imputation to be cast upon his democracy, and the Banner will still be in line in the battle for democratic expressions. success ever as it has always been.

A TALK WITH MR. COLLEY.

Hon. F. H. Colley, of Wilkes, is in the city, and in an interview concerning the meeting in Wilkes, has this to say: He stated that he had not seen the proceedings of the reported Lawson meeting, until his arrival in Athens, when his attention was called to the article. He stated that like any other man, he had his personal enemies, and that they had been industriously at work against his momination for congress. In spite of the fact that Wilkes county had been thoroughly canvassed on sale day and alliance day, and that most of the people in Washington had been solicited at the time of the meeting, only twenty-one men could be found who opposed him, and it would seem found who opposed him, and it would seem the meeting, only twenty-one men could be found who opposed him, and it would seem from what can be gathered, as to the meeting, that Colley is all right in Wilkes, and, indeed, an article in the Banner says that it shows conclusively that Colley is intensely popular in his home county, and that no such meeting can injure him. Mr. Colley goes from Athens to Bishop, where he will meet Judge Lawson in joint debate tomorrow. He stated to a Banner reporter that if he didn't carry Wilkes county by such an overwhelming majority as to convince his opponents of his popularity, he would withdraw from the race.

ENJOINING THE CAPITALISTS.

The Augusta and Summerville Railroa Company Seeks Legal Protection

Company Seeks Legal Protection.

Augusta, Ga., June 6.—[Special.]—The Augusta and Summerville Railway company has obtained another temporary restraining order from Judge Roney down at Waynesboro yesterday, and served today on the Augusta Railroad company, praying a permanent injunction, and calling on "one D. B. Dyer claiming to represent," etc., to show cause why he should cross or rather to restrain him from crossing the tracks used for steam railroad purposes of the Augusta and Summerville Railroad company. It was thought that this sort of thing was over, and the Kansas City company would have no further trouble, but the new owners of the Augusta and Summerville railroad seem bent on continuing the fight against the new electric line. The question has already been practically decided by Judge Roney in another case, and it is not believed that the injunction will be granted, but it is annoying and expensive in meeting these suits, and rather discouraging to capitalists who come to invest over half a million dollars in improving a city to be met with injunctions and suits at every turn, but the Kansas City developers are old hands at the business, and are not dismayed by such opposition.

Death from an Accident.

MACON, Ga., June 6.—[Special.]—A singular accident happened on the Macon and Birmingham railroad, about twenty-two miles from Sofkee, yesterday, resulting in the death, this morning, of one of the workmen, W. T. McGargh, a white carpenter. While working on one of the trestles being built he cut his leg with an adz, inflicting a wound about four inches long and one inch deep. A physician dressed the wound, and nothing serious was anticipated, but the man lies in Macon tonight a corpse. This morning he ate a reasonably large breakfast, but in a short white began to get suddenly worse, and at 8 o'clock was dead. His remains were brought to Macon tonight and turned over to the undertakers for burial. His home was in Twiggs county. He was about twenty-two years of age and unmarried.

THE HUBS CAME TOGETHER. A Serious Accident to Dr. M. J. Daniel, of

GRIFFIN, Ga., June 6.—[Special.]—Dr. M. J. Daniel, one of the oldest practitioners of the city, happened to a serious, if not fatal, accident this morning. While driving down Hill street and in front of J. M. Mill's store, his buggy was overturned by the wheels of his buggy and those of Mr. J. A. Stewart coming in contact. Both parties were driving in the same direction, and as Mr. Stewart attempted to pass Dr. Daniel the hub of his wheel struck the doctor's wheel, and before he could stop his horse the buggy was completely turned over.

Dr. Daniel received a hard fall, by which Dr. Daniel received a hard fall, by which his right hipbone was broken just below the socket. It was feared that internal injuries had been sustained, but the attending physicians say this afternoon that there are none. Dr. Daniel is sixty-seven years of age, and has been a resident practicing physician of Griffin for a number of years.

At this hour (8 o'clock) Dr. Daniel is resting comparatively easy. His greatest pain, he says, is in his back.

The Milledgeville Agricultural College.

Milledgeville, Ga., June 6.—[Special.]—
The annual commencement of the Middle Georgia Military and Agricultural college was opened last night with a calisthenic entertainment by the primary classes. The large chapel was packed from pit to dome some time before the exercises began, and more than a thousand faces were turned toward the stage when little Charlie Conn. as crudite of the primary department, stepped forward to make the welcome address. The little fellow acquitted himself nicely, and put the audience in good spirits for what followed. The calisthenics, wand and sash drill followed, and a better entertainment was never seen in the college. The postures and tableau scenes were beautisul, while the drills and other movements were as near perfect as mortals could make it. The representation of "Sowing Seeds of Kindness" and "Nearer My God to Thee" were beautifully touching, and the sash-drill brought down the house. The spiendid showing made by the members of the primary department is due, in a large measure, to the efforts of Misses Carrie Fair and Alice Wright, who have charge of that department. The opening night of the college commencement was the most auspicious ever known in the history of the institution, and the faculty and trustees are delighted with the excellent entertainment. The scientific exercises tonight by the students under Major Lynes was the first exhibition of the The Milledgeville Agricultural College with the excellent entertainment. The scientific exercises tonight by the students under Major Lynes was the first exhibition of the kind ever seen in Milledgeville. It was given for the benefit of that department of the college, which is one of the most important of the college studies. The class is a large one, and was put to the severest tests in the entertainment tonight. The apparatus used by the college is mostly the personal property of Major Lynes, and strong efforts have been made recently to increase it. A good sized sum has been raised for that purpose, and the scientific department of the college here will be one of the best equipped in the country in the future. During the entertainment last night, Miss Annie Winn treated the audience to a cornet solo, and Master Henry Thomas caught the crowd with his splendid declamation.

We may dispel the gloom, banish the sorrow and gain riches; but sickness will overtake us, sooner or later. Yet, happily, that enemy can be vanquished; pains and aches can be relieved; there is a oalm for every wound, and science has placed it within the reach of all. A cheerful set of men were the exposition directors yesterday.

They visited the grounds of the company and viewed with delight the many improvements that are now being wrought upon the grounds and buildings.

The visit of inspection was made by the following members of the board of directors, who were invited to go out and witness the great work of improvement by President Wylie, under whose supervision it is progressing: Messrs. P. H. Snook, H. H. Cabaniss, E. P. Black, George Hope, B. B. Crew, E. Rich, F. J. Cooledge, F. P. Rice, D.O. Dougherty, B. F. Walker, R. B. Bullock, H Castleman, Joseph Thompson.

Doing With the Park.

These gentlemen met at the drug store, known as Stoney, Gregory & Co.'s store, and chartering a car for Piedmont park proceeded to the grounds escorted by President Wylie.

VIEWING THE WORK.

Arrived at the entrance to the park, the directors went at once about the purpose of their visit, looking over the various improve-ments going on from day to day, and listening to the further plans for beautifying the ground, which President Wylie has already mapped

They were charmed, and unanimously approved the great work that is being done by President Wylie.

The grounds will be enlarged by moving the fence on the north side further back, so as to take in the large hill by the Piedmont club-The president was voted authority to make such further improvements as he may deem best, and it is needless to say that the grounds will fairly bloom, under the manipulations of scientific culture, before the time comes for them to be opened to the multitudes of visi-

The recent changes about the club-house are attractive, and give the building an appearance of elegance such as it never had before, with its new roads and terraces, green lawns and gravel walks. This improvement has been extended around the main building also. THE ATHLETIC GAMES PROHIBITED.

THE ATHLETIC GAMES PROHIBITED.

Some months ago, the exposition directors gave permission to the management of the Young Men's Christian association to hold the field-day of the association on the Piedmont grounds.

The athletes will be prevented from meeting there, however, by action of the directors yesterday. It was found by inspecting the grounds that to use the enclosure within the race track for baseball and other sports, it would be necessary for conducting these games to remove the grass from the ground, and as it is absolutely necessary to have this ground well sodded before the exposition, the directors thought best to withdraw the privilege from the Young Men's Christian association.

AT THE CLUB-HOUSE.

After going through the grounds from one end to the other, on their tour of inspection, the directors gathered at the Piedmont club-house to revel in the unbounded satisfaction of what they had seen.

They found the grounds a perfect picture, and were most agreeably surprised at the late developments out there.

After lingering at the club-house for a short while, they bearded their car and came back to the city, inspired with the promise of the torthcoming exposition.

THE EXCITED FISHERMEN. They Think They Were Badly Treated by the Frenchmen.

HALIFAX, N. S., June 6.—The St. Johns, N. F., Herald, which was brought here today by the steamer Caspian, says:

"Two questions relating to the recent outrages committed by the French in St. George's bay were put to the premier by Messrs. Morrison and Carty. Mr. Morrison asked the premier to lay on the table a copy of all telegrams received by the government relating to the recent reported outrages at St. George's bay and all replies thereto. Mr. Carty asked, first, if her majesty's subjects in St. George's bay had been ordered to take up their herring nets by French naval officers; second, if armed Freuch Marines patrolled the harbor of St. George, and third, if armed Freuch naval officers had landed at Sandy Point and read a notice to the people that unless their nets were immediately removed they would be cut loose by a

"The premier replied to the three questions at same time.

"Upon receiving official communication in writing from Mr. Carty, he had telegraphed to the magistrate in St. George's bay upon the subject of these reported outrages. The magistrate had replied that no French armed force had landed at Sandy Point, but that a French naval officer, armed with a sword, accompanied by one man, had come to the strand, landed upon the public wharf and then read his notice to the people. The colonial secretary, he said, also received telegrams from the prefect apostolic, stating that the French were acting within their rights in reading the notice and in ordering the nets to be taken up, and steps taken to irritate the French would act injuriously and prevent an amicable settlement of the difficulty. Upon the faith of those telegrams, Sir William Whitervay endeavored to persuade the public that there was no truth in the accounts of French outrages in St. George's bay which have been current here for a week past.

"Among the passengers on the steamer Cas-past.

"Among the passengers on the steamer Caspian from St. Johns, N. F., was Rev. Father Guillo. In an interview he said that the fishermen at Sandy Point, St. George's bay, are very much excited over the manner in which they have been treated by the French. The day before the Caspian sailed the schooner Rover, Captain Graham, while fishing off St. George's, was hailed by a boat from a French man-of-war and ordered to take in her nets. Captain Graham refused, and the French deliberately pulled the fishing gear from the water.

"Rev. Father Howley interviewed the com-mander of the French vessel and got him to refrain from further action until the arrival of the St. Johns delegates who are now on the other side trying to effect a settlement of the question. A number of fishermen held a meeting at St. George's on Fiday night, at which resolutions were passed to the effect that if the French came inside the shore limits and the try the first the resolution were passed to the shore limits and the first the try world he first age. floated their nets they would be fired upon.

GENERAL LONGSTREET.

He Talks Freely of the Treatment He Received at Richmond. St. Louis, Mo., June 6.—General Longstreet, who is in the city on a visit, has been interviewed by a correspondent at his hotel. He comes direct from Richmond, and the incidents of the day there are fresh in his mind. In talking freely of the treatment he received from his old soldiers while in that city, the general said: "The boys may misjudge me and my motives and actions with their heads, but their hearts are all right every time. I would not take a good deal for my experience. The old soldiers covered me with confederate flags, cheered me, cried over me, and wrung my hand again and again. One old mane who served under me is now totally blind. He said: 'General, I will never see you again in this world, but I hope we'll meet up yonder, where we can all see. I want to hear your voice once more before I die.'" General Longstreet was much affected while talking of his old/comrades-in-arms.

THE TERRIBLE RESULT OF A RAIL-ROAD WRECK,

Which Occurred on the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus Railroad—Several Persons Killed.

ROME, Ga., June 6 .- [Special.]-There are many rumors of a serious wreck that occurred about dark tonight at Tolliver's, a flag station twenty-three miles above Rome, on the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus railroad. THE TRAINS COME TOGETHER. It is reported that freight train No. 16 ran into the local freight, No. 14, which was standing at the station, and, though behind time, had out no flagman. THE KILLED.

Engineer Ike Williams and his fireman. Will -, of Carrollton, were killed. Their bodies are still under the wreck.

Walter Langston, a brakeman, and others on this train are said to be injured. Estes, conductor of No. 14, is an old employe, and Hardin, conductor of No. 16, has been in charge of a train only a short time.

OTHER DEATHS REPORTED. It is impossible to get information, but reports say that a man and wife and two children on the local freight were killed.

THE RELIEF TRAIN. The relief train left at 8:30 p. m., with Dr. Hammond and others, and will bring back the passengers from the down passenger train, which is held by the wreck.

FIVE MEN KILLED

In an Accident on the Northwestern Rail-

ROCKFORD, Ill., June 6 .- The Northwestern passenger train from Freeport, which reaches Chicago at 2 o'clock, jumped the track two miles west of here at 11 o'clock this morning, on account of a broken wheel. A gang of sec tion men were working about two hundred feet from the point where the engine left the rails, and before they could get away the train had run them down and toppled over them. The entire train was wrecked and the engineer and four of the section men killed outright. The fireman, two station men and some of the passengers were injured. The dead engineer

They say, however, that the accident was due to a train coming from Louisville to Cincinnati, and that a sleeper on that train left the track and rolled down an embankment, that some passengers were hurt, but none killed, and furthermore, that the accident delayed the train from here to Louisville only an hour. Nothing more definite can be learned at this hour.

THE "INDEPENDENTS."

A New Party Formed by the Farmers'

Alliance and Knights of Labor. HURON, S. D., June 6.-The Farmers' Alliance and Knights of Labor closed a three days' session here this afternoon. The most important action was a decision to organize a new party. Immediately on announcement of the vote the alliance adjourned amid wild excitement, and the convention took political action and organized with J. W. Crasson, of Potter county, as chairman. The committee on resolutions reported in favor of woman suffrage, a graded service pension, the prohibition of the liquor traffic, a tariff for revenues only, and denounce ing the acceptance of page s by legislators and other public officials, and the report was adopted.

On suggestion of President Louck, of th alliance, the new party was named the "In dependent Party." A platform was adopte which includes state and national declaration of principles. The Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union and Knights of Labo demand "currency to be issued by the gener government to be full legal tender," crease in volume with the increase of busine and to be issued directly to productive indutries without the intervention of banks of issue It also demands railroad transportation, tele graph and telephone service at actual cos and that the government shall own and opera the same, and the free and unlimited coinag of silver; adoption of an absolutely secretoring system, both state and national, an the passage of laws prohibiting the alies ownership of land.

GERMAN GOSSIP.

Notifying the Powers of Bismarck's Retire ment, Etc.

BERLIN, June 6 .- The Berliner Tagbla says that Chancellor von Caprivi has ser communications to the various powers Europe, informing them that the utterances of Prince Bismarck since his retirement concer ing affairs in Germany are merely the expre-ons of opinion of a private gentleman. It is announced today that Chancellor von Caprivi's communication to the various European powers, concerning Prince Bismarck. referred to by the Tagblatt, is merely a notification of Prince Bismarck's resignation, being usual to inform powers when a high state official withdraws.

General Verdy du Vernois, minister of war. announced to the military committee of the reichstag today that bills would be introduced by the government providing for the construc-tion of strategecal railways, and for training tion of strategecal railways, and for training reserves in the use of the new rifle. In addition, the war minister said an appropriation would be asked for the further equipment of the army. He declared no one capable of bearing arms should cease training when he had completed his term of service. The government had only decided upon the main principles of the measure concerning reserves. The demands contained in the military bill were small as compared to those of the French government. He said he was not empowered to make a statement regarding fixing the strength of the army every seven years.

JUDGE SPEER DECIDES IT IN HIS

The point was well taken, and was, to some extent, anticipated by Colonel Hardeman, the acting solicitor-general.

Judge Speer sustained the demurrer and the indictment was quashed, being on the charge for perjury in the United States court against officer, and therefore the affidavit was not made before the proper person for it to come within the jurisdiction of this court. Hall's two daughters were in the court-house

MACON'S WATER SUPPLY.

Macon, Ga., June 6.—[Special.]—THE Constitution had a talk with Manager Wilcox, of the waterworks, today, in regard to the rumor that there was a rapid decrease in Macon's water supply. He says there need not be no alarm, as he can promise the people all the water necessary, if they can be induced to stop using it as has been done heretofore. Yard sprinklers, he says, in many yards run troughout the night and hydrants are turned on and allowed to remain running for hours,

Yesterday afternoon he sent out inspectors over the city and at 6 o'clock there was five

These inspections stopped the unnecessary use of the water, and thus the reservoir registered the adequate amount. He proposes to continue this method until the people can be made to realize the importance of using the water economically.

NEW WATERWORKS FOR MACON. A Scheme is on Foot Headed by Well-known

Capitalists. Macon, Ga., June 6.—[Special.]—It is pretty generally conceded that Macon's water supply is inadequate. But this idea in view numerous schemes have been set on foot to establish new waterworks here, but none of them have ever been accomplished. Today,

This will give Macon one of the largest water supplies of any city in the south. The McCall pond water is of excellent quality, and is just the water that other syndicates have often tried to get.

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 7, 1890

Colonel Northen for Governor. The past few days have been field days for Colonel W. J. Northen!

The alliancemen of the state have pooled their issues, and he will receive the undivided support of that organization!

Without disparaging the claims of other men who desire to be the next governor of Georgia, we can say that the action of the state alliance, in this matter, will meet the hearty approval of all the good people of this state. We think that a large number of the business men of the state would have supported Colonel Northen, and with the alliance practically solid at his back, and a large majority of all classes working in harmony, it will give him an easy race for the demoeratic nomination, which means his election in October as the next governor of Georgia.

Everybody admits that the farmers are entitled to a governor. In the selection of Colonel Northen they present an honest man, fearless in the discharge of his duty and democratic to the backbone. He is a man who has had experience in state politics. His record is clear, and he is careful of the rights of all and firm enough not to yield to the blandishments of power or to be swerved in any way from what he considers to be an honest discharge of his duty.

The alliancemen who brought about the conference that resulted in this pooling of issues have acted wisely, and they deserve the thanks of their order in every county. They have not only recognized the good of the alliance, but of the democratic party, and in this the good of the state!

This is no time for dissensions and differences. We want harmony among our people, and when we can get it by electing good men to office there is nothing lost, simply because it goes to one class instead of another.

It is pretty well understood that the alliancemen in the fifth congressional district will insist on Colonel L. F. Livingston making the race for congress. In fact, it is stated that they will insist on his making the race. If he does, he will be a very formidable candidate in opposition to Colonel Stewart, the present incumbent. Colonel Livingston is an able speaker, and is very popular with the farmers, and his desire for harmony in this race for governor (and he has a strong following) will give him additional strength.

THE CONSTITUTION predicted some time ago that Colonel Northen would be the next governor of Georgia. We have taken no sides in this race, and have tried faithfully to give the true status. We always expect to support the democratic nominee, and we determined in this case to be in condition to give that nominee a hearty support, whoever it might be. The salvation of every right that is dear to our people in this state de pends almost entirely on upholding the principles of that party. We were anxious that our standard-bearer, therefore, should be one who was worthy of the great and responsible position of governor. We took pains to carefully feel the pulse of the democrats of Georgia months ago. Our predictions made then have been proven correct in every move that has transpired, and while we claim no credit for naming the next governor of Georgia, we do claim credit for impartiality in ascertaining at the outset whom the people wanted. Unless something happens that is beyond human foresight, Colonel W. J. Northen will be the next governor of Georgia, and we will add, he will make a governor that the people of the state will be proud of. He goes before the people of the state asking for nomination as the democratic candidate, without any promises, and with a full knowledge of the obligations of his office. And we believe he has integrity and ability sufficient to satisfy a large majority of the rank and file of the party in this state that he is the proper man to make the race for governor as the standard-bearer of the democratic party.

They Want the Earth.

Republican jobbery is not always popular with republicans—at least, republicans have been found who had the manliness to protest against it, as in the case of Congress-man Allen, of Michigan. The man who is at the head of the public building committee hails from the state of Maine, and during the time that he has been in authority he has demonstrated the fact that a Maine man knows a good thing when he sees it. We are heartily in favor of public buildings; we need them in the south, and in a slight measure our wants in this respect are being gratified. Wherever a public building is necessary-where the business and population of a place warrant a liberal appropriation for one-it should be built, but when we see the appropriations going the republican way-when $75,000 is asked for a postoffice in a town of two thousand inhabitants, and similar large amounts are proposed for public buildings in republican villages, the fraud and injustice which are being practiced by the public building com mittee are so apparent it is no wonder that honest republicans enter a protest and condemn the whole system of spoils.

The partisan attitude of Speaker Reed in the matter of public buildings-in winking at the way the committee has been conducting the affairs of the government, has called forth many indignant protests from the press; but the most notable protest that has been made is that of Congressman Allen, a republican, of Michigan, and it is being very generally approved and commented on by the fair-minded newspapers of the country. Congressman Allen has denounced the whole system as infamous and has given vent to his sentiments in the following words:

While my responsibility of office rests upon me in the shape of an oath, I will not sit idly lby and hear men cooly talk about dividing post-offices according to the politics of this house. I say, sir, that we ought to retrace our steps. The committee should bring forward the bill now on the calendar, which proposes to build post-offices in this country according to some equitable rule. That bill should become the law of the land. Then cities where the postal receipts are four times as much as those of the one in question would receive what belongs to them

But of what avail is the protest of a few honest and upright men? The party which is now running the government is working on party lines, and its policy is to build the party up and let the people who are outside of it take care of themselves.

Previous and Painful.

President Harrison is not happy. The summer attractions of the White House are many, and the measure of power to which he has attained ought to satisfy the longings of any reasonable man; but it is not so with

Some time ago he decided that the country had had a fair sample of his administration and that he would like to know the people's opinion of it, and find out definitely whether or not they would like a continuation of it after the expiration of his present term. In a word, Mr. Harrison is haunted by the second-term nightmare, and it is giving him some rough riding.

The emissaries of the president are just now engaged in the business of feeling the public pulse in regard to this second-term mania. It is thought by the critics that the president is a little previous in his desire to settle the matter thus early in the season. but for all that his agents are at work and are taking the political census in a very sly and quiet way.

Thus far the results have been unsatis factory. The visit of Attorney-General Miller to Indianapolis has given a black eve to the president's prospects in that state, and Mr. Harrison has been made to know that he has very little to hope for from his own people. Indeed, Mr. Miller was informed that the people there were dissatisfied with the administration, and that Gresham was becoming a favorite for 1892.

The outlook is certainly not encouraging to the president, and the example of Indiana in repudiating his administration is not likely to strengthen his chances in other states. In fact, the future has very little hope for him, and the suspense in which he awaits the verdict of the people in this matter of a second term is unrelieved by any hopeful signs.

The Campaign in Three States.

For an off-year in politics, things are right lively in the south. As fast as the campaign ends in one state it begins in another, and the political ball is kept rolling and gets larger as it rolls.

Our friends in Tennessee are worked up on the gubernatorial contest, and east and west Tennessee will oppose each other with candidates for governor. The tenacity with which the people cling to the rotation system in politics is remarkable, and this is the issue which seems likely to divide the sentiment of Tennessee. The fight over the election of a new supreme court judge will also be made interesting, as there are no less than seven candidates for this important office. for which a stubborn battle will be made. Mississippi, also, has fallen into line, and promises a congressional campaign which will go on record as one of the liveliest in the political history of the state.

Perhaps there has never been a year in the history of southern politics, when so many candidates offered for the same offices, and the vigorous campaigns which are being made are largely due to this cause. A tida wave of political ambition seems to have swept over the land, and the people have mounted the breakers and are pulling for the shore with all their might.

In South Carolina the republicans are. perhaps, more active than in any other state, and the situation there gives grave cause for alarm, but it is hoped that the fable of the lion and the three bulls will not be verified in her case, and that if the party does split in three parts for a time, it will come together and march in solid phalanx at the first signal of danger. Great interest is felt in the politics of the palmetto state, and it is hoped that she will pull through all right. The republicans are catching at every straw which blows their way, and we cannot too often counsel the democrats of our sister states, as we advise those of our own, to be wary and keep a sharp eye on the enemy. All divisions in political parties are dan gerous. Close up the ranks! About the Melon Trust.

We commented somewhat lightly the other day on the charge that the melongrowers of Georgia had formed a trust. It seemed to us to be too absurd to treat it seriously, and yet we find that some of our northern contemporaries are treating it seri ously. Obviously, they proceed on the idea that, as every kind of combination at the north is formed for the purpose of squeezing the public, combinations everywhere and of every kind are in the nature of trusts. The association of melon-growers, how ever, is not a trust, and is without the purposes of a trust. The watermelon business has sprung up, as it were, in a night, and has grown to tremendous proportions. A few years ago, when THE CONSTITUTION was advising the farmers of this state to go into the cultivation of melons for northern markets, a great many people, including most of our esteemed contemporaries, ridi culed the suggestion and declared that it was impracticable. Nevertheless, a few farmers in southern and southwestern Georgia took hold of the idea with such favorable results that the melon-growers' associa tion is now one of the strongest agricultural bodies to be found anywhere. The business has grown to such an extent that last season nearly 10,000,000 melons were shipped to the north from Georgia and Florida, by far the largest number going from Georgia. In other words, to be exact, 9,300 car-loads, averaging 800 to 1,000 melons to the car, were shipped to northern markets. It was found that, owing to a lack of sys em in handling this immense business, and a lack of concert of action on the part of the growers, there was a great less of fruit. Many markets were glutted, while others were clamoring for melons they could not obtain. The losses attendant on this confusion and lack of system were most serious, and resulted in charges against the middle men who handled the melons. Unquestionably there was swindling in this direction, as there must always be in a business that is passing from the experimental stage; but by far the greater part of the losses that the growers have suffered can be traced to the lack of system.

No trust can be formed on perishable goods that are in the nature of a seasonable luxury; but it will be an easy matter for the growers, through the agency of their organ ization, to so distribute their product as to secure reasonable prices and prevent seriou losses. This is the nature and extent of the melon-growers' trust, so-called.

We Will Keep Cool. The remarkably mild winter through which we have passed gave rise to gloomy forebodings of an ice famine this summer. The ice crop was so small that fears were entertained that a trust would be estab lished, and prices would jump far beyond the reach of the poor.

In this connection an exchange calls attention to the fact that science has come to the rescue, and is now doing the work which nature failed to do last winter, and that the slimness of last year's ice crop was really a blessing in disguise. It has been demonstrated that artificial ice is really purer and better than the natural article, and that with all these advantages it can be manufactured and sold at a lower price than natural ice.

The failure of the crop has given an impulse to the factories, and the large amount of ice which is now being produced lessens the cost to the consumer. In some of the very smallest of southern towns, the ice factories are going night and day, and the supply will doubtless be fully equal to the demand. Enough will be turned out for the cooling of the nation, and the ice barons who figured on big profits this summer will find their goods melting on their hands, and the people will keep cool in spite of them.

Negro Enumerators.

The republican programme of race irritation is very faithfully carried out in Louisiana. In Lafourche, which is a white parish. nine negro enumerators have been appointed, as against three whites. Of these negro enumerators, the Thibodaux Sentinel says that their reputation is not enviable; and of their appointment it may be said that it has been made for two purposes-to irritate and stir up the whites and to insure a defective census. The parish of Lafourche is too white to suit the republicans, and by the appointment of negro enumerators the returns will undoubtedly show a black majority.

Either the enumeration will be extremely faulty, or the whites will resent the invasion of their homes by the negroes, and so stir up strife. Negroes of bad reputation have been appointed in order to secure that re-

We have never doubted that the census would be "cooked" in the interest of the republicans in the remoter districts, where such frauds would attract little attention. This sort of thing can be carried on in various portions of the south independently of the appointment of negro enumerators, but it is the hope and intention of the republicans to get up race conflicts here and there, and they have appointed negro enumerators as the most convenient method.

"Central avenue," said the forty-year man, "is that street which runs along the west side of the ruins of the Michigan Central and the suburban station of the Illinois Central. It begins at the river. Front street makes a conjunction with it at its beginning. The avenue runs south to the Randolph street viaduct. Central avenue is not generally quoted, I must admit."

The "Life of Henry Grady." From the New York Critic. Cut down upon the very threshold of matured and active manhood and of a long and promising career, the death of Henry Woodfin Grady was a national calamity. His sudden decease awoke the sincerest lamentations all over the south. It called forth so many touching tributes in prose and verse, in private sorrow and public manifes tation, that there was felt a necessity for the permanent expression of these, as well as a memo-rial of the man. More impressive, enduring and appropriate than masses of granite or marble is the memorial volume compiled by his associates on THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, and sent forth upon its mission. It is a handsome octavo of 628 pages, and in its front is set a likeness of the strong and gentle man, who in himself personified the new south. Their white shakes added to the picture, and when they came to a company front, the grand stand gave them loud, long applause. The Atlanta Zouaves and the Memphis companies were on the front seat, and were there to start the applause. Bill McMillan and Bob Carpenter chartered the band's bass drum, and whenever a fine movement by the Brunswick thumped manfully on both ends. For fifty-two minutes the Riflemen held the attention of the large audience, and when they marched off the field they were given a hearty, royal reception. As they went upon the field the band gave them "Dixie," and with the tune a mighty yell went up, in which Missouri joined.

As the company came off the band gave "Yankee Doodle," and in the applause the Georgia and Tennessee boys took a loud part. The Ritlemen's drill is said, by those who know, to have been the finest given by any company in the maiden contest PRETTY CERTAIN OF A PRIZE. The inspection was a perfect one and only a very few errors were observed by the military men in the grand stand. The captain appeared to have absolute and complete control of his nen and their movements were like clockwork. Every southern soldier feels assured that the Brunswick boys will take home a

The Atlanta boys have cut no figure in the programme today except upon the grand stand and in the dress parade. In the dress parade were both companies, and they presented a nagnificent appearance.

The Rifles have been requested to give an exhibition drill Monday morning, and Captain Spencer will probably consent. WILL VISIT FORT LEAVENWORTH.

Tomorrow the company goes to Fort Leavenworth, leaving here at 8 o'clock in the morning and returning at 7 o'clock in the evening. The company makes the visit upon an invitation from General McCook. The invitation was sent the boys by the general at the request of Lieutenant Brown, one of the judges, and a Georgia boy. During the day the piano tent in the Rifles' camp has been one of the favorite resorts of the camp. The novelty of a piano in a tent draws nearly every one, and nearly all day Mr. Stiff has been busy working the keys. Lieutenants Brown and Baker have both visited the tent today, and both were highly pleased with the music. A pleasant, happy incident, showing the popularity of the Rifles was discovered this morning. At the head of Georgia avenue the letters "A. R." can now be seen in the ground. They are made of a white sand-stone, looking very much like Georgia marble and are quite large. Around the two letters is a large "O." During the night the letters were placed in the ground by a detachment from the Omaha Guards.

A RECEPTION.

Tonight the Rifles gave a reception to the flicers of the visiting companies from 9 to 10 o'clock. Nearly every captain enrolled was present, and they were loyally entertained by the Atlanta boys and the ladies accom-panying. The hour was a happy one indeed. At 10 o'clock the officers and Quite a number of members of the Rifles, Riflemen and Zouaves went to the officers' ball. The ball was given in the main building and was attended by the best people of the city. It was an evening of rare pleasure for the Rifles and the other Georgia boys. To morrow night the Rifles are to be entertained by the Omaha Guards and for an hour or two the boys will have a happy time. They are want to get home. Only the pleasant social relations they have established with the boys make camp-life endurable. A feature of the day not on the programme was the presentation of a metal badge to Lieutenant Snook. The badge is a souvenir of the en-campment. It is made up of four silver bars fastened together with silver links. bars are "Company B., 4th Georgia Infantry." The words are evenly divided among the bars and the badge is a pretty one. It was given Lieutenant Snook by the second four of the Denver company. THE ZOUAVES HEART-BROKEN. The Zouaves cannot enter the drill and are almost heart-broken. They all think they can outdrill anything they have seen so far, and are anxious to take it in. Captain Hollis, however, has not put in an appearance yet, and the company cannot go to work. Then, too, Lieutenant White, who has been in command, was called away today by a telegram, and the company is now under command of Sergeant Carpenter.

At headquarters throughout the day, Corporal Brambill, of the Zouaves, has been on duty. Naturally

WHO WILL GET THE PRIZES? Atlanta would like to know what chance Georgia stands for the prizes. Of course there is no way to tell just now, but to every one it is apparent that the Rifles general favorites in the interstate drill. Today in the pool-selling on the grounds the Rifles were offered dollar for dollar against the field, and the offer was not taken. In large, white letters it remained all day long, writt across the pool-sellers' blackboard. The too, nearly every officer on the grounds who has seen the drilling of the co panies, one other, says that the Rifles put up the best drill yet presented.

Still the Rifles are quite nervous. It is a sure thing that the company did not put up the drill the members wanted or expected to present. However, it is said by those who ought to know that it was a fine piece of

Of one thing, however, all Atlanta can rest assured, and that is that the entire Georgia delegation is a creditable one. Every boy has made himself popular, and all over the city they are referred to as the best, finest, most gentlemanly and soldierly boys in the camp. It looks rather strange to see a Kansas boy and a Georgia boy walking around the streets arm in arm, but it is something seen here now every hour in the day, and everybody enjoys it; none more so than the Kansas and the Georgia boy. The individual drill takes place tomorrow.

as there are no national issues drawn it would be impossible to forecast the proceedings in anything like detail. One matter to come up is the completion of details for the erection of the Printers' home. At the Denver session, last year, a proposition from the citizens of Colorado Springs was submitted, offering to deed to the International Typographical Union eighty acres of land, lying within one mile east of the city of Colorado Springs, upon the conditions that the commencement of the erection of a home on said land be made within the period of two years from that date, and to be completed within one year from the date of commencement of the building, The proposi-tion also contains a provision granting permission to sell any portion of the tract not exceeding sixty acres, at any time after the date of the deed, the proceeds of such sale to be devoted toward the erection of the home. The proposition as outlined above was accepted by the vention and subsequently by a vote of the nembers.

Voluntary subscriptions to this home fund aggregate now $3,763.96.

Another fund available for this purpose is the Childs-Drexel donation of $10,000, made unconditionally, in 1886, by George W. Childs and A. J. Drexel, of Philadelphia. This has been accumulating interest ever since.

The Home is to cost $20,000.

The money now available for this purpose is very nearly or quite sufficient, and the details for the work will be completed by this convention.

An Effort Being Made to Settle the Mat-

Parson McCutchen! Today the case of the state against Rev. Thomas McCutchen will be heard before Justice Manning-

Unless the case is settled. There is a movement on foot to settle the natter, and a public trial may not be gone into, on account of the wishes of the East Atlanta Baptist church. At the meeting Thursday evening a number of the members were in favor of asking for the resignation of the pastor. But a majority were in favor of retaining him, and the voice of the majority prevailed. There was yesterday some talk of a division in the church, but this is unlikely, as the members of the church and the friends or Mr. and Mrs. McCutchen are all desirous of settling

Mrs. McCutchen are all desirous of settling the case outside the courts, and restoring the pastor and his wife to their former relations without putting anything on record that will be discreditable to either husband or wife, or the church.

Mr. McCutchen appeared in Justice Manning's court yesterday and signified his intention to settle the case, if possible; and a number of influential friends are at work to reconcile the husband and wife, and to have the case disposed of by Justice Manning in the morning in a way that will settle the whole matter.

MR. RODES' FUNERAL.

All that was mortal of young Billy Rodes was laid to rest in Oakland cemetary yesterday afternoon.

The funeral was largely attended, and the floral tributes were among the most exquisitely beautiful of any that have been placed on a casket in many a long day. Billy Rodes was a general favorite with Billy Rodes was a general favorite with those who knew him, and his sad and untimely death caused the deepest sorrow among the many friends who constituted the circle in which he moved.

The body was interred in Oakland cemetery, and the remains were escorted to their last resting-place by a large concourse of friends who knew him in life and who in death were faithful to his memory.

ARBY RUBBERD.

A BABY BURKED.

All that was not immortal of little Ida Laviece Johnson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Allen D. Johnson, was interred in Oakland cemetery yesterday evening.

The funeral ceremonies occurred at the home of the parents, and a large concourse of friends was present to join in sympathizing with the parents in their bereavement.

Verdict for Defendant. A long drawn outlesse for personal damages, preferred by B. D. Henderson against the Richmond and Danville Railroad company, was settled yesterday. Henderson, through his attorneys, Messrs. Hoke and Burton Smith, sued the company for $5,000, on account of personal injuries sustained.

Mr. Tom Cobb Jackson, representing the counsel for the Richmond and Danville road, defended the case, and the result was a verdict for the defendant. IT WORKS WELL.

CENSUS SCHEDULES SENT OUT PROMISCUOUSLY.

Each Family Can Take its Own Census Without Bothering With the Imperti-nent Enumerators.

People are talking a good deal about the use of the "prior schedule" in the census-taking.

The use of the "prior schedule" means the sending out of blanks to private households for the families to make out for themselves and keep in waiting for the enumerators when they In many cities this plan is being condemn as a very improper one in the manipulation of the census. In these cities, when it was an-nounced by the supervisors that any citizens who didn't want to be bothered by questions from the enumerators, could fill out the blanks themselves, and as long as the answers were satisfactory, the enumerators would take them when they came along and would not bother

This plan of sending out advance schedules is limited. It is a privilege granted in section 5 of the census act, which authorizes the distribution of schedules to as great an extent as the enumerators and supervisor may deem practicable in cities and thick-ly settled regions.

In Atlanta it is practiced to a very great Hundreds of blank schedules are given over each day by Supervisor Thibadeau, and he says the work of the enumerators is made much lighter by it? The merchants have even been sending to the census office for the blanks and keep them in their stores to be presented to their cus

THE RESULTS ARE GOOD. "These prior schedules greatly facilitate the work of the enumerators," remarked the su-pervisor of the census yesterday.

"The enumerators have to pay two visits oftentimes, one to carry the slips and the other to receive them, but it saves time in the end. No ill results could possibly follow, for if the questions are not answered correctly the enumerator has a right to correct them before accepting the papers.

"One of the greatest benefits to be derived from the advance sheets is the avoiding of embarrassment in asking many of the ques tions. Census takers have a great extracting the answers to several of the ques tions on the papers. For instance, an enumera tor may go to a house and in asking a mother what employment her son is engaged in, and if the boy is an idle fellow, she refuses to tell and invites him to call again when the father is at home, so they can talk over the matter The enumerator has to go away and go back again and then experience, perhaps, the same or a similar trouble.

"By sending out these prior schedules the census works a great deal smoother, and the enumerators are doing rapid work now.

"Yesterday they reported double the num-ber of names that came in the first day. The census is moving on hurriedly." A NEIGHBORHOOD TERRORIZED

A mad dog created a panic in the neighbor-nood of the Atlanta university yesterday after-Between 4 and 5 o'clock a good-sized black

Near the negro college the dog set upon Belle Smith, a negro woman, tearing fier clothing almost entirely off and cutting and bruising her considerably. A physician had to be called to dress her wounds.

The neighborhood was terrorized. Four other dogs were bitten by the mad beast, and two chickens were killed after a bullet had been lodged in its body.

Patrolman Lackey shot the dog as it was running through the Atlanta university yard, after following him for a half-dozen blecks, firing shot after shot at him.

Patrolman Lackey, after killing the dog

STILL UNDECIDED As to Whether or Not Mr. Hoke Smith Will Enter the Race.

It seems to be still undecided whether or not Mr. Hoke Smith will be in the race for the legislature. The committee of fifteen railroad men met last night at the Railroad Young Men's Christian association, and Mr. Hoke Smith, in response to the invitation, was present.

Mr. Smith made a statement to the commit tee. His business is such, he said in substance that he could ill afford to leave it. To do so would entail considerable pecuniary loss. Moreover, to run now would put him in the

If the committee insisted upon his entoring the race he felt it his duty to do so, but he urged that they would not do this, but release him from such obligation.

An informal meeting of the committee will be held this forenoon, and it is not improbable that definite action will be taken then.

Next Monday night, at the office of the Southern Alliance Farmer, the railread committee will meet with the county alliance and other local organizations, and it is possible that definite action will be postpened until that time.

It only took six days this year. In 1887, it ran until July 7th, and in '88 the discount was called off, so slow did the tax-payers take advantage of it.

Yesterday morning, Deputy Sheriff Perkerson took charge of the broom factory at Nos. 28 and 30 Foundry street.

This factory has been run by G. D. Mc-Millan, who mortgaged the concern to George Hamilton for $1,000.

The broom factory failed to pan out, and it was on a fi fa, on the complaint of Hamilton, that the factory was closed.

The assets are from $500 to $600, and the liabilities $1,000 to $1,000.

CROP REPORT ISSUED FROM THE AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Corn and Cotton Better Than Last Year-The Fruit Crop in Much Worse Condition.

The crop report for June was issued yesterday from the agricultural department. It reads as follows:

STATE OF GEORGIA, DEPARTMENT OF AG-RICULTURE, ATLANTA, Ga., June 9,1890—While a careful reading of the "Notes from Correspondents," and study of the tabulated statespondents," and study of the tabulated state-ment of general average condition of all crops, this season, as compared with the same date last year, will give a more satisfac-tory idea of the general condition of the growing crops than any summary of a few words only. I can but congratulate the farmers on the fair prospect indicated by these reports.

A general improvement in the condition of agriculture, as well as of the individual farmer, is apparent. The principles of economy and independence taught by the alliance are making their impress on the people, and I can but believe they are now on the road to that prosperity which should ever be the reward of onest labor.

Corn.—The condition of this crop is reported at 97, seven points better than at same date last year. Much complaint is made of bud worm, especially on lowlands, and consequently bad stands. However, the indications are ly bad stands. However, the indications are that a good crop has been planted, and it is in fair condition. The only suggestion I can make in regard to the bud worm is, that lands most subject to these pests should be planted at as late a date as possible, and soon after the corn is up it should be barred off and soil raked away, exposing as much of the lower part of the stem to the sun as possible. This seems to harden the stem and cause the worm to seek cooler quarters.

Cotton is reported in better condition and a better stand than at same date last year. The stand is given at 93, as against 75 same date last year, and the condition at 93, as against 82 same date last year. Some complaint is made of scarcity of labor for "chopping out," but fair progress in this work has been made, and the outlook is favorable.

Grain Crops.—Wheat and oats are both reported as badly damaged by freezes and rust, and the percentages of yield for both are put at very low figures. A liberal area should be seeded to peas to make up for any lack of forage consequent on the failure of the oat crop.

The Fruit Crop.—Peaches are reported at forage consequent on the failure of the oat crop.

The Fruit Crop.—Peaches are reported at 21 per cent, against 100 same date last year; apples 37, against 79 last year; pears 38, against 85 last year; grapes 88, against 97 last year; from which it will be seen that all fruits have been more or less damaged, though peaches have suffered most, and in some sections the crop is a total failure.

Other food crops are reported in good condition, with fair acreage planted.

A BARBED WIRE FENCE TAX.

A Georgia justice of the peace, in Bartow county, is the victim of a joke. His letter to the comptroller-general explains itself:

cided to make some important extensions and additions to its lines. A horse car-line will be run to Grant park. Grant park, Ponce de Leon and Piedmont

It is certain to be done, though. The line connecting Piedmont park, Ponce de Leon and Grant park will also probably connect with the Peachtree line, making a great circuit of the whole.

This will be a great convenience. It will give North Atlanta a direct route to Grant park, and likewise South Atlanta a direct route to Ponce de Leon and Piedmont park. Such a car-line has long been needed. Now sured, the news will be very gratifying to a large number of citizens who have been patiently waiting.

First-class service will be given on the new lines, as is the rale on all the branches of the Union company.
Schedules that will satisfy even enthusiastic

THE CITY IN BRIEF:

THE NEWS OF THE DAY IN CON-DENSED FORM.

esves from the Notebooks of Constitution Reporters—Notes of News and Gossip— Street Scenes and Incidents. The First of the Scason.—Yesterday Mr. Lee Miller, the Peachtree street fruiter, received a consignment of apricots and cantaloupes, the first of the season.

A Severe Sprain.—Mrs. J. T. Eichberg met with a painful aecident at the Whitehall street cross-ing, where she sustained so severe a sprained ankle that she is confined to her home. For Selling Liquor on Beer License.—John E. Schmidt, George Fisher and Joseph Farrell, were arrested yesterday for selling whisky on beer licenses.

The Train Will Not Be Run.—The excursion train intended to be run Sunday on the Atlanta and Florida is annulled, and will not be run.

Lots Sold at Auction.—The McPherson park sale yesterday afternoon was largely attended. Mesers. Wilson & Logan conducted the sale, with Mr. W. A. Osburn as auctioneer. The bidding was spirited from the start, the sale aggregating over $9,200. The bidders were all citizens, who bought for homes, and will improve the property at once.

A Lady Journalist.—Mrs. E. R. Davidson, of the editorial staff of the Southern Alliance Farmer, is making quite a reputation as a writer and business adjunct to that sprightly alliance paper. On of the best articles on the sub-treasury plan is from her pen. Mrs. Davidson is a niece of Colonel L. F. Livingston, of Newton county.

A New Furniture Factory.—The Southern Furniture company has applied for a charter. The company is composed of L. Newelt, O. Schwab and O. Pappenheimer, of this city. These gentlemen are known as capable financiers, and will, doubtless, make the enterprise they have started one of the largest in the south. The Tolleson Case.—Today the Tolleson case will come up for a final hearing on the petition for his release from prison. The arguments of the attorneys who represent the various banks that appear as plaintiffs will be heard, and in all probability Judge Clarke will decide the case.

Lost a Finger.—Rev. T. M. Harris, pastor of the Hunter Street Christian church, is out after a seven weeks' confinement to his room. A bone felon appeared on the middle finger of his letthand, and blood poisoning ensued to such an extent that Drs. Howell and Westmoreland decided to annutate the finger. This was done, and the life of this eminent Atlanta divine was probably saved by the operation. Mr. Harris is just able to appear upon the streets again, after his trying ordeal.

Robert's Condition.—J. M. Robert, the man who was hurt in a difficulty with Mr. Burton Smith some weeks ago, is still at Providence infirmary, where every attention is being shown nim. He has never tully recovered his reason, and while perfectly rational some days, is just as wild and incoherent on others. He is kept under a strict guard, but if he is ever restored to health, will be released on bond, as a number of his friends have signified their intention to go bail for him and keep him out of prison until his trial.

Pulling the Moonshiners.—Deputy Collector J.
H. Crawford reported two seizures yesterday made on his recent raiding tour. A distillery near Buchanan, supposed to be the property of Elija Freeman, together with five hundred gallons of beer, five stands and two copper stills were taken. Also a distillery, said to be the property of N. B. Houston, twelve hundred gallons of beer and still.

The Old Cadets.—The death of Billy Rodes recalls the old Atlanta Cadets, an organization made up of the most prominent young men of the city at that time. Billy Rodes, Hart Wylie, Steve Postell and Ed Pattorson constituted one of the "fours" of that company; and the two survivors of the "four," as well as the other members of the Cadets, mourn the death of Billy Rodes, the second one of the "fours" who has passed beyond the river. The floral designs, at the residence of Mrs. Rodes were many, and the designs were surpassingly beautiful. Billy Rodes was in life well beloved, and in death he was not forgotten by those who were his companions in the golden days of his promisful youth.

A New Commission Firm .- Mr. J. M. B. Carl-A New Commission Firm.—Mr. J. M. B. Carlton, the wholesale commission merchant on Broad street, has sold his business to Mr. J. W. Storey and Mr. W. H. Carlton. The firm is now Storey & Carlton. Mr. Storey came to Atlanta from Jonesboro several years ago, and has worked his way up steadily to success. For some time past he has been employed by Mr. Carlton, and is thoroughly acquainted with the details of the business. Mr. W. H. Carlton is a son of Mr. J. M. B. Carlton, and is an energetic and progressive young business man. It is quite safe to predict that the new firm will be a staunch and prosperous one.

The Guild-Phillips Case.—The argument in the case was continued yesterday before the United States court. The only interesting feature of the evidence was the testimony of Prof. B. F. Moore, of Moore's Business university, to whom had been entrusted the letter of release from the $1,100 debt which was paid by the sale of the land in question. Prof. Moore was given the letter with some others written by Mrs. Philips, and was requested to detect if Mrs. Philips wrote the letter of release, which she denies doing. He testified that so far as his judgment powers to detect went he believed the letters were written by the same person. The case will be concluded, perhaps, today.

THE examination into the enforcement of the excise laws, which the state senate committee has now closed in New York city, has brought abundant moral evidence that the police do not seriously at-tempt to enforce these laws. It was shown that the worst dives in the city were practically unmothe worst dives in the city were practically unmo-lested; that when it was positively proved that drinking places were kept open inside the distance from the polling places prohibited by law, these proofs were not acted upon, and that when such a case was acted upon, and the license of the pro-prietor was taken away, the commissioners were compelled by mandamus from the courts to re-store it; that places where boys are allowed to drink and camble campt be reached by complaints. Charleston, W. Va., June 6.—Lightning did some terrible work at the Pioneer Coal works, six miles above this city, at 9 o'clock this morning. During a heavy storm a stroke of lightning struck the company's barn, killing Tom Hicks, a stable boy; Sumner Stephenson, a stable boy, and partially stunning William Wells, the company's store superintendent, and a boy named Dick Alexander. Stephenson's clothes ignited by lightning. Wells and Alexander will recover, but narrowly escaped instant death. The barn was slightly injured:

THE OLD SOUTHWEST.

A CHAPTER OF ALMOST FORGOTTEN AMERICAN HISTORY.

The Intrigues of Spaniards and Others in Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Mississippi.

Until ten or fifteen years ago the most neglected chapters of American pioneer history were those that related to the "old southwest," the settlements south of the Ohio vest of the Mississippi. Here, few except the novelist of adventure, the mere analyst, and partisan political historian had ventured to gather material; here, even now, when tudents trained in modern historical methods, have made the world somewhat aware of the greatness of the work done by the pioneers of Kentucky, Tennessee, and Georgia, there is yet a field for many more writers. There is still a wealth of neglected material and room for another Parkman. The stock of the pioneers of the old southwest came from Maryland, Virginia and the Carolinas, and their descendants fought and explored their way at last into the "new southwest" of Texas and beyond, and all the way to the Pacific coast. From such stock came the Bartons, Bentons, Blairs and Crittendens of early San Luis, generals like Harney, desert-crossers like Doni-phan, and thousands of trappers who learned o out-ride the Comanche and out-fight the Apache.

The pioneer life of the old southwest still lingers in men's hearts. Descendants of men who, a generation before, had peopled the foot-hills and outlying mountain spurs of the Alleghanies, at last, driven by poverty, or led by love of adventure, crossed the pine-clad heights and descended into the beautiful valleys, prairies and open forests of the southwest, con-quering them from the Indians after an almost incredible series of hardships, dangers and frontier tragedies. Camp-fires of Boone, war-trails of Hardin, Clarke and Joe Davies, and the traditions of that race of pioneer heroes, have taken root in American

The backwoodsmen were, in truth, interesting characters. They were mostly farmers, nominally, but their living depended largely on hunting and pastoral pursuits, keeping, they did, large droves of hogs and herds of cattle which wandered over the as yet un-fenced common pasturage. They betted as freely as gentlemen of the house of Stuart, drank like robber barons, rode like moss-troopers, and fought like Jazinaries. As the troopers, and fought like Jazinaries. As the country became settled, their only intellectual excitement was stump-speeches and the occasional sermons of circuit-riders. Rude, strong, honest eloquence the frontier lawyers and politicians of the time gave them, in those eager, vivid days of 'the founding of the commonwealths of the 'old southwest,' and of the forming of the social habits of the Georgian, Kentuckian and Tennesseean, so different from each other, and yet so alike in courage, fiery temper and generous hospitality.

There men, the fathers of the southwest, learned silence and patience in lonely rambles over broad, grassy plains, or through the tangled luxuriance of the primeval forest; yet on social occasions they displayed strong gifts of language, and clethed their thoughts in simple, graphic and original forms. If tradition be tracted they could swear with an intensive fanguage, and clethed their thoughts in simple, graphic and original forms. If tradition be trusted, they could swear with an intensive complication of phrases never again known on earth until the advent of the Nevada teamster of two decades ago. It was a brave, honest, unsophisticated and hospitable race of backwoodsmen. Their roads were chiefly bridle paths, and their towns were villages of love calling. Every stream that ran by their log cabins. Every stream that ran by their doors slipped into rivers that fed the Father of Waters. Their faces were turned toward the setting run; grim peaks and dreadful wildernesses, through which it was long said that no nesses, through which it was long said that no practicable road for commercial purposes could be built, separated them from the Atlantic seabord. The only court of competent jurisdiction for capital cases was in Richmond, Virginia, five hundred miles distant, and many weary weeks were required for the fourney.

The modern historian who has learned the The modern historian who has learned the enormous value of the first steps toward organization in *rude communities, lingers over the politics of the region. It was the Mississippi valley, and both France and Spain desired it; both had already entered upon and held large portions of it, and both were covering the whole territory, from the Rockies to the Alleghanies, with a network of political intrigues. Even a superficial glance at the subject shows the abundance of yet ungarnered, unused material, in the way of books, pamphlets and original documents. But when, in phlets and original documents. But when, in these days of haste and surface-work, shall this broad field, so long untilled, find any hand able and willing to undertake the complex and multitudinous labors involved? This coming historian of the elder southwest must re-veal to our eyes the land of for-ests, prairies and rivers, as it ap-peared when Nashville and Frankfort were being founded, and the first flat-boat dared the dangers of the great river; he must make living flesh and blood of the shadowy forms of suave Sebastian, foxy McGillivray, un-scrupulous Wilkinson, stately Galvez, astute Miro, and others who are but names in the land they plotted to control and make a sepaand they plotted to control and make a separate principality; he must sit with foreign emissaries by the council fires of Creek and Cherokee, in those eventful twenty years of western intrigues, and unravel the tangled web from obscure clues in private correspondence and cipher dispatches in the cabinets of kings and cipher dispatches in the cabinets of kings. And he must show the place of these states as a link between the still earlier southwest of the south Atlantic seaboard, and the present southwest of New Mexico and Arizona. This is a field ample enough to satisfy the most ambitious of young American historians.

At the close of the revolutionary war the American settlers had fairly reached the Mississimi and were discovering that the calcium. American settlers had fairly reached the Mississippi, and were discovering that the only outlet for their products was down that river. Their mode of life was becoming more agricultural, and they had corn, tobacco, bacon and beef to sell or exchange in the nearest market, which was New Orleans. And to the plots of Spain to reunite the whole valley under her control were now added the plots of England to shatter the young confederation of states, and the plots of France, endeavoring to weaken Spain and regain some foothold on the Mississippi. The Louisiana purchase, the greatest event of that generation, put an end to the discontent of the pent-up, restless southwest. This "well-based discontent" would have "ultimately forced the capture greatest event of that generation, put an end to the discontent of the pent-up, restless southwest. This "well-based discontent" would have ultimately forced the capture of New Orleans, or it might even have caused a temporary separation of the southwest from the weak confederation, as documents, public and private, bearing upon that eventful period from 1781 to 1803 will sufficiently show. After 1803 the chief actors in various plots became wisely reticent, destroyed all the evidence they could, and forgot their former grievances in the great prosperity of the region. So it has come to pass that few of the writers of American history have seemed to understand the nature and extent of the dangers which were forever ended by the purchase of Louisiana.

A characteristic phrase in one of the Intendant Navarro's letters to the Spanish king, calls the Americans that "restless, poor, ambitious, capable, enterprising nation," whom he heartily feared and thoroughly hated. Captain Welling had tried in 1776 to capture Natchez, and two years later, Baton Rouge, Seorgia claimed to the Mississippi, and so did Virginia, and Clark had put his fort below the Dhio. Galvez, the great viceroy who ruled Luba, Mexico, the Floridas and Louisiana, a territory five times the extent of the states, extended west Florida, claimed both banks of the Mississippi, and desired that the western limits of the United States should be "the summit of the Alleghanies," leaving the width between those mountains and the great river as a wilderness! Georgia had already founded that famous "Bourbon county" which afterwards grew into the Mississippi.

By May, 1784, the American diplomats had secured free navigation of the Mississippi, and made the thirty-first parallel the boundary on the south. Then began the later plottings of Spanish emissaries with Indians, public men of prominence and land companies, with promises that Spain would help to maintain an independent western republic.

One of the famous men of the period was Alexander McGillivray, chief of the Tallapoosas, whose letters and diplomacy elicited Washington's admiration. Scotch, French and Indian blood flowed in McGillivray's veins. He and his sister were potentates who swayed the Cherokee tribes with almost despotic power. His father had been chief before him, and young McGillivray had received a fair education in Charleston, South Carolina. In 1784 this shrewd and influential man wrote to Miro, the Spanish governor at New Orleans. He was afraid of the Americans, wanted help, and thought that the tribes could be united in a confederacy as a barrier against Georgia. Miro met McGillivray and other chiefs at Pensacola, and they signed a treaty, the chiefs receiving large pensions.

could be united in a confederacy as a barrier against Georgia. Miro met McGillivray and other chiefs at Pensacola, and they signed a treaty, the chiefs receiving large pensions. In fact Spain paid out more than $300,000 in a few years among these tribes.

General Wilkinson, the florid and plausible orator, began his western American career in 1784. He drew up the resolutions looking toward separation from Virginia, which were passed at the first Danville convention. December 27, 1784. Kentucky then contained some thirty thousand people; eight years later it was three times as great. Wilkinson visited, New Orleans in great state in 1787 and 1789. New Orleans in great state in 1787 and 1789, and secured his noted "tobacco contracts," and permission to establish colonies in-west Florida. He also began his secret cipher correspondence with the Spanish governors. One of his letters to Miro refers to Sebastian, Innis and others as "triendly to Swain and descriptor of his letters to Mirorefers to Sebastian, Innis and others as "friendly to Spain and deserving of pensions." The de Pontalla report to Napoleon from Louisiana enumerates Wilkinson's services to Spain, and adds that he "will put the same abilities to the service of France." A letter written by Miro to Valdez, the Spanish secretary of state, under date of January 8, 1788, says: "The delivering up of Kentucky into his majesty's hands, which is the main object and to which Wilkinson has promised object, and to which Wilkinson has promised to devote himself entirely, would forever constitute this province a rampart for the protection of New Spain." In April of the same year, a cipher dispatch from Wilkinson was sent to the cabinet at Madrid. He informed than with contribution that his predictions had sent to the cabinet at Madrid. He informed them with exultation that his predictions had been verified; that Kentucky had separated from Virginia; that the other districts would soon follow; that "all measures taken on both sides of the mountains favored the scheme." Meanwhile, Gardoqui, the Spanish minister at Washington, had his own pet scheme of at washington, had his own pet scheme of establishing colonies under the government of Spain, which should check the advance of the Americans. His agent, Pierre Wower d'Arges, undertook to lead 1,532 Kentucky families into this region, or into Louisiana, whichever seemed the most advisable. Miro stipulated that these colonists were to bind themselves to take un arms against invador from the America take up arms against invaders from the American territory; they were not to be taxed, and the government was to buy all the tobacco they raised. Colonel Morgan, of New Jersey, was allowed to found New Madrid under a similar concession.

In the midst of plots and counter-plots, that frontier "State of Frankland" was organized In the midst of plots and counter-plots, that frontier "State of Frankland" was organized by the old war hero, Colonel John Sevier, twice governor of Tennessee. The mountaineers could no longer remain a part of North Carolina, and, establishing their separate government, they also began to realize that their interests were with the Mississippi valley.

About this time, too, the great Yazoo Land company began to attract public attention. The various purchases of the Yazoo scheme were made from Georgia, by parties in South were made from Georgia, by parties in South Carolina, in 1789, and consisted in all of 52,-900 square miles of rich land. It was a prin cipality, and the private ownership of such a tract was strongly condemned by Washington. The agent of this company was Dr. James O'Fallon. He opened communications at once with Miro, saying that they wished to once with Miro, saying that they wished to "be the slaves of Spain, under the appearance of an independene state, and would establish eternal alliance, offensive and defensive." He said they had ten thousand persons ready to colonize, and that he had been a secret agent for Spain for years.

for Spain for years.

Washington's firm and wise management of the government began to quiet disorder, and the southwest plottings lessened after 1790, until by 1794 Wilkinson concluded it was time to hedge. So he drove Power, one of the agents of Spain, out of the country, first securing his papers. His own intrigues with Spain, however, still continued. June 27, 1796, he was corresponding with Don Thomas Portell, commandant at New Madrid, and received from Portell $9,000 concealed in sugar chests. Baron de Carondelet, the new governor, writing to officers in the Spanish governor, writing to officers in the Spanish forts, told them "Kentucky and Tennessee must be separated from the union," and ordered them to secure the co-operation of the Chicasaw Indians.

The last off art was a first town.

Indians.

The last effort made by Spain to secure the help of the Kentuckians and the Tennesseeans was in 1797, when Baron de Carondelet sent a letter to some of his friends in Lexington. His proposal was in five heads, which severally condensed, were simply as follows:

1. He advised his friends to separate from the Atlantic states and become independent. 2. He promised that Spain would arm He promised that Spain would arm and equip the troops of the new government, and pay them $100,000 in gold.
 He suggested that the boundaries should be the Ohio, and Cumberland, and Tombigbee.
 He agreed to protect them against the In-

5. He promised not to interfere in the raming of laws, nor to attempt to lessen the ndependence of the "Western Republic." independence of the "Western Republic."
These astounding proposals, offered by the Spanish governor to American citizens, and not made public until years afterwards, came at a time when the treaty of 1795 with Spain was in full operation, and every month drew closer the bonds between the old states and the new. They were but illustrations of Spain's inability to recognize facts. Nothing, it would appear, had been learned, and nothing forgotten. Her long intrigues to control and possess the region south of the Ohio, were actuated by much the same spirit as that which, two hundred years before, had led her to lavish the treasures of the new world on the vain effort to master the sailors of Zeeland, the burghers of Leyden, the unconquerable the burghers of Leyden, the unconquerable resolve of the prince of the house of Orange. SWINGING THE CLUBS.

CLOSE OF THE SCHOOL OF PHYSICAL

Lindley's Exlution Yesterday-The Notes About People. Musical Class of Profes

The Atlanta school for physical education closed yesterday, with "visiting day for ladies," and not-withstanding the hot weather has driven many withstanding the hot weather has driven many from the city, there were over thirty of the mem-bers present and the audience were highly enter-tained. Miss Lindley, and Miss Elizabeth Roberts, the director of the Chattanooga school, and the normal graduates were their uniforms of black divided skirt and white silk blouse with black velvet collars and cuffs, black silk stockings and white sash. The members of the ladies' class were their suits of navy blue with light blouse, and a charming nicture they made, comand a charming picture they made, com-fortable in every way, even to low, heel-less shoes. Their exercises gave them free circulation, consequently they did not suffer from heat, as did their visitors in close clothing and poor circulation, and the spacious armory, with its excellent ventilation, afforded ample opportunity

The military march was the first in order, and the ladies did some very pretty wheeling and obeyed orders promptly. Is not some of our Atlanta husbands indebted to Miss Lindley for bringing them under discipline? This march ran into a broad-sword exercise, and beside the benefit to muscle and the enjoyment of this exer-cise, it educates the mind to accuracy, for one must be on the alert to ward the blows. The "crack fen cers" did some fine work after the others retired, and were so professional as to neither dodge nor change expression. Heavy work followed this, and it is marvelous to see ladies, considered delicate, climbing the rope, and performing other feats that require strength and endurance. An exercise in Swedish gymnastics, followed by freeing motions from Delsarte, and breathing exercises, came next, and interested the visitors from their novelty and the harmonious develop-ment they carry, which every one can easily com-prehend. The breathing is a scientific study, and the two-inch gain in chest expansion the class boasts for this year is due this work.

Indian club-work followed, led by Miss Harding, one of the normal graduates, who is a pretty and graceful leader. Miss Roberts, of the Chattanooga school, followed this with "the snakes," and other difficult circles—work too complicated for classes. Her graceful work brought forth enthusiastic applause.

Miss Lindley then made a few remarks, stating that the close of the school today was not on account of hot weather, as some supposed; that systematized exercise and other features of body culture are as necessary in summer time as in winter. but because so many of the class are away during the summer months; and said that exercise to be beneficial, must be directed by some one who has made the physique of each member of the class a study, and that exercises learned from books or in any way other than where indi-vidual needs, variation of weather and diet are considered, often cause much injury. To conside any one system of exercises beneficial to everybody regardless of physical defects, inheritance of disease, etc., is as impossible as to consider that a physician could write universal prescriptions. The subscription to next year's class is already as large as the at-tendance the past year has been, and includes the leading ladies of our city, and the ladies anticipate having many improvements made in their appliances. The exercises closed with a pretty piece of dumb-bell work, after which the heavy apparatus came into play again.

All the exercises were interesting, and the pupils showed a wonderful adeptness in going Miss Laurette Boykin returned home last night

ECZEMA FROM CHILDHOOD.

When an infant my body broke out all over with an eruption, or rash, which became more aggravated as I grew older. From early childhood until I was grown my family spent a fortune trying to cure me of the disease. Every noted physician in our section was tried or con sulted. When I came of age I visited Hot Springs, Ark., and was treated there by the best medical men, but was not benefited. After that, under the advice of a noted specialist. I tried the celebrated Clifton Springs, New York, without any good results. When all things had failed I determined to try S. S. S., and in four months was entirely cured. The terrible Eczema was all gone, not a sign left; my general health built up, and I have never had any return of the disease. I have since recommended S. S. S. to a number of friends for skin diseases, eruptions, etc., and have never known of a failure to cure.

How it Works, as Applied to Atlanta's Irregular Topography—The Council Will Consider the Ordinance. The matter of revising the street numbers of the city is attracting considerable comment. Under the system in use now and which has always been used in Atlanta, renumbering the streets has become a regular thing. A new plan ought to be adopted.

So says everybody who has given the subject the least thought. The present plan never gave any sort of satisfaction, and it never will—in Atlanta.

In cities laid off in straight and parallel streets, with blocks of uniform size, it may do. But in Atlanta where the streets run in every direction, and where there are probably n) two blocks of the same size, with houses built on lots of all sizes and shapes, regardless of any attempt at rule, the consecutive numbering idea is a failure.

By all means the centenary system should be ad pte!. It is the only solution of the str et nambering problem in a growing city e upl a ically the solution when that city is irregularly laid off.

City Engineer Clayton strongly recommends it, and in the regular order of things his opinion is worth something.

A number of councilmen have been recently talking the situation over. The more they talk about it the more they become convinced that Atlanta, like all other first-class cities, should adopt a system that will apply for all time to come.

Already trouble and expense have been occasioned by several renumberings. From this it is easily apparent that there is something wrong about it. If there were not, such confusion in house numbers would never have been, and the necessity for these renumberings would never have arisen.

Here is how the centenary plan works: To each block, no matter how small it is, 100 numbers are appropriated. There is no block in the city large enough to accommodate more than 100 numbers, and in most instances the numbers will fall much short of that fig-In the business part of the city this would allow regular numbers for the different floors of office buildings.

The numbers might run north and south from the railroad or Marietta and Decatur streets, and east and west from Peachtree and Whitehall as the dividing lines.

For instance, under the centenary system numbers from one to one hundred would be included in the block on Pryor street from the railroad to Decatur street. Then from Deca-tur to Edgewood avenue would include from 101 to 200, and so on all the way, one hundred numbers between all cross streets.

Some objection at first was raised against the system because it was said it would not work on irregu ar streets, where angles were formed by the intersection of several streets.

But that idea is a mistaken one. The scheme was devised to meet just such difficulties. Follow Pryor street on up to its junction with Peachtree, for example. From the railroad to Decatur would include one hundred, from Decatur to Edgewood avenue up to two hundred, from Edgewood avenue to Wheat to three hundred, and from Wheat to Houston four hundred.

Then, there at the First Methodist church comes a triangle. The Episcopal church corner would begin the five hundred number, and the short side of the small triangle fronting Pryor, which angle is made by the junction of Pryor and Peachtree, would include only so many numbers as are necessary to designate the several doors. The numbering would then go on evenly to the corner of Ellis street on the right hand side of Peachtree, ending at five hundred there. From the corner of Church street to Ellis on the left hand side would include 100 numbers, these numbers beginning on Peachtree street at the railroad. In cases like this the numbers can easily be arranged so as not to conflict.

The centenary scheme is even much more desirable in localities where the blocks are not solidly built up or divided into regularly sized lots. Why this is so can be seen at a glance. The residents on each block would know that 100 numbers were appropriated to them and so each could arrange his accord-

In case more houses were erected on a block d easily be avoided

Then there is still another advantage of the centenary plan.

Suppose you want to go to No. 450 Marietta street. At once you know that that number is just four and one half blocks from the dividing line, Peachtree street, if that should be

As it is now, a person unfamiliar with the street cannot well determine whether 450 is four blocks or a dozen.

With the centenary system you can measure the distance to any particular number precisely. If you are sure No. 1,200 is twelve blocks distant, you are pretty apt to want to cover the distance by street car or cab. But if you don't know whether it is three blocks or a dozen, you don't know just what to do. One system is just as expensive as another.

It is simply a matter of investigation to convince any one which is the best. The council will have the renumbering ordinance before it again at its next meeting, and it is more than probable that it will be reconsidered and the centenary plan adopted.

Bids will be advertised for putting up the numbers at so much a piece. To whomsoever the contract is awarded, each property owner will pay the contract price for each number. Property owners may put up fancy numbers If they desire. But this must be done in ten days from the time the contractor calls, or the recorder is authorized to impose a fine not exceeding $100. Let's have the centenary system. Then the work will be done for all time.

lanta Banking Company. The committee of the board of directors of the Atlanta Banking company, appointed to draw up a memorial to the late John R.

Gramling, president of the company, has pre-Graming, president of the company, has prepared the following:

The directors and stockholders of the Atlanta Banking company have sustained a loss in the death of the president of the company, Mr. John R. Gramling, which to them is peculiarly a sadone, to the members personally and to the institution officially.

Mr. Gramling, was to a large extent the founder.

Mr. Grambing was, to a large extent, the founder and organizer of the company, and to his watchfal care-to his wise and conservative direction of its affairs, and to the unlimited confidence felt in him by the stockholders and the community of Atlanta, is due in large measure the success of the Atlanta Banking company.

To us personally he was ever kind and pleasant. He combined in himself the successful business man and a warm heart, full of generous impulses and controlled by Christian influences. He possessed in a large degree a genius for business which made his own fortune of steady and always increasing growth and that also added his fellowman by a wise management of the affairs entrusted to him.

Were we to state in one word the ruling motive of his life we would say: Duty, iResponsibilities were great upon him, and to their discharge he was faithfully and scrupulously conscientions. He upheld his share of the burdens of life by a heroic determination to do that which was right underfall circumstances. Mr. Gramling was, to a large extent, the founde roic determination to do that which was right underfall circumstances.

It saddens our hearts to think we will no more enjoy the cheering companionship of his presence, nor the able assistance of his wonderfully gifted mind in our business affairs. We devoutly hope and believe that he has found "beyond the stars" the rest and happiness, which is the boom so greatly desired by us all, and which alone is the compensation of life's never-ceasing toils and structure.

compensation of life's never-ceasing tons and struggles.

To his family, deprived of its head, so noble, so loving, so warmly sympathetic, so helpful, in whom reposed their unbounded confidence and love, we tender the deepest sympathies of our hearts, and commend them to the care and love of the Father who watches over us all, and who "doeth all things well."

We direct that this testimonial of our company be spread upon the record of our acts and doings and that a copy be sent to his family.

A LITERARY TALK.

MISS FORD, THE CHARMING LEC-TURER, AT MRS. GRANT'S

A Talk Replete With Literary Culture and Gennine Merit-A Literary Circle Forming in Atlanta.

It was a literary gem.
At least that was the verdict of the selec circle of literary ladies who heard Miss Ford's literary talk yesterday at the residence of Mr.

W. D. Grant, on Peachtree street.

The gathering was such a one calculated to fully appreciate in the extreme such a scholarly and literary talk, and the satisfaction felt is a sufficient evidence of the worth of the

The "literary talks" of Miss Ford are famous throughout the country for their re-search and highly refined order, and the very fact that she has come to Atlanta for the purpose of forming a literary circle is interestng to all of Atlanta's literatti.

The ultimate purpose of Miss Ford's visit to Atlanta is to arrange for a series of literary talks, forming a thorough course in nineteenth century compar-ative literature with the works of Victor Hugo as a basis. These lectures will be prepared by Miss Ford in Paris, France, next fall and winter for the exclusive use of members of her literary circle, to whom printed copies will be mailed weekly as a guide for home reading or for the use of such members as may wish to form themselves into literary clubs.

She has been met with much encouragement n Atlanta in the formation of her literary club, which speaks much in the praise of At-

Miss Ford's talk, yesterday, at Mrs. Grant's, was on "Realism in English Prose Fiction." She began by drawing the line of demarkation between the romance and the novel of real life, showing that the order of the requisites of romance are: 1, incidents; 2, scenery; 3, characters, which formula is reversed in the novel of real life.

She then defined in a striking manner the much mooted term "realism," and showed that it is essential to the best dramatic novel. The lecturer expressed the belief that only Hawthorne among American authors could claim a place among the great English leaders, and pronounced George Eliott's works the culmination of the novel of real life.

She spoke of the insight one gets of the character of the author through a study of "Mill on the Floss, especially the relation of the brother and sister in the story, giving the relation between George Eliott and her brother.

It was a delightful lecture from beginning

It was a delightful lecture from beginning to end.

Miss Ford will deliver a talk today at 10:30 o'clock, at the residence of Major Livingston Mins, the proceeds of which will be divided with the Industrial school.

She said yesterday that it had been difficult to determine which of the three lectures she has recently given to the ladies of Macon would be best to present here. She had at last decided on "The Novel of Real Life," in preference to "Robert Downing," or "A Florentine Monograph." At the close of her talk she was requested to remain in Atlanta long enough to give the lecture on "Browning." This subject will be discussed at Major Mins' this mcraing at 10 o'clock. Miss Ford leaves for Alabama this afternoon.

Worthy of Trust.

Worthy of Trust.

A tourist climbing up a mountain side doesn't want a small, limber or rotten stick. No, he wants a stout staff that will bear his whole weight, one that he can lean on in confidence, one that is worthy of trust and that will uphold him should his feet slip. So an invalid, in search of health. They dislike to fall into the hands of a doctor and be experimented with. They want to use the proper remedy for their ailment in the start. They are only willing to take medicine on condition that it will make them well. Now there is one remedy whose effect is a certainty. It has been tried and tested in thousands of instances and has never once failed. It is called Smith's Tonic Syrup. Its principle was discovered by the eminent Dr. John Bull, of Louisville, Ky. It is pleasant to take, and possesses all the good medicinal qualities of quinine, but is free from all its objectionable qualities. It will cure chills and fever when quinine fails. It will also prevent and cure colds, influenza, la grippe, etc. Its influence is positive, and it is a remedy worthy of trust.

Surprise to All. After using "Mother's Friend" two months I can truthfully say it has no equal. I was so speedily and easily relieved that it was a sur prise to all those attending me. "Mother's Friend" undoubtedly lessens the pains. shortens the time and restores the mother speedily to health. I only used one bottle, which cost me $1.50; it has been worth $20 to me. I cannot write enough on the subject; suffice it to say that I will recommend it to all expectant mothers and advise them to use it Mrs. J. A. R., Muncie, Ind., September 27, 1889. SAYS IT IS BLACKMAIL.

MR. GOULD WRITES A CARD ABOUT

In Which He Says That it is Based Upon a

Failure to Extort Money From

Him by Blackmail.

"It is an attempt at blackmail—nothing else," was the emphatic expression of Mr. E. F. Gould, in discussing the suit brought against him by Mrs. Hall, the artist.

"I have the documents to show that I am right in making that assertion-to prove that right in making that assertion—to prove that what I say is true. The whole thing grows out of my having ejected Mrs. Hall and her husband from my building for failure to pay the rent. There is absolutely no truth in the allegations of the woman's petition. The whole thing is, in short, a blackmailing scheme."

Later Mr. Gould furnished the following for

Mr. Gould's Statement

ATLANTA, Ga., June 6, 1890 .- Editors Constitution: In this morning's issue of your pa-per you have published what purports to be a very sensational damage suit, in which Mrs. Selina Cole-Hall is plaintiff and I am defendant.

Now, I do not wish to fight this matter in the newspapers, but since her published allegations reflect so strongly upon my private character, I do think it but justice to myself to state here that each and every allegation of her complaint is absolutely false in fact, mis-chievous in character, and founded upon an utter failure to extort money from me by the process of blackmail. Some weeks ago I ejected Mrs. Selina Hall and her husband fro building, at No. 10 Decatur street, for failure to pay the rent due me, and I am now suing her husband for the same rent. Since this ejection Mrs. Hall's husband has written me several letters, threatening to accuse me of various crimes if I do not pay them money. These letters, together with several of similar import from their attorney, one John A. Wimpy, have been inthe hands of my lawyer, Mr. Charles Read, for several days, under whose advice I refused to take the money earned by me in honest toil and contribute it to the necessities of such wretched creatures as Mrs. Selina Hall and husband, and this Wimpy. I have only been prevented from prosecuting these parties criminally for sending me said threatening letters, by the instinctive desire that a gentleman feels to keep himself out of public controversy with those who have nothing to lose, either in character or in purse. But since their "itching palms" and "aching voids" and empty purses seem only capable of being comfortably filled by public notoriety, as the next best substitute for public plunder, I shall leave no stone unturned to assert my legal rights, and in the assertion thereof I will no doubt be able to teach these vampires that the laws of Georgia were made to protect honest men in the enjoyment of their well-earned riches from the mendacious allegations of blackmailing suits and the perjured testimony necessary to maintain them.

A WAR TRAGEDY.

In the early spring time of 1865, when the curtain was about to ring down along the en-tire line of battle, the great and humane Lee so restricted the passport privilege as to permit only one or two to a company to leave the port. Leaving a hard bunk of pine poles in rear of Pecahontas near Petersburg, we squeezed our way up to the ticket office at the southside depot, and got aboard for a trip to middle Georgia. Did you ever take a hand in a "scronge?" Yes, that is the word—about that time, in trying to board a train either at Richmond or Petersburg com ing south. If not you only went half through We had a furlough of just fourteen days to go to Crawford county, Georgia, and return to Petersburg. The first day was consumed entirely in reaching Greensboro, N. C. The great rain-fall of February, 1865, will be long remembered. It broke up the railreads from Virginia to Georgia and cut us off at Greensboro with three states to wade. We stole a pole car and ran it to the Yadkin with poles, and made eighteen miles an hour. We took another one at Yadkin and made Salisbury, N. C., in time to catch the passen-Salisbary, N. C., in time to catch the passenger train pulling out for Columbia, and got there for supper the third day out. At Columbia we were told that the entire superstructure of the bridge at Smithville, on the Congaree was gone, and our heart collapsed. It had been two years since we saw the dear ones at home and we did so yearn for a sight of them again. and we did so yearn for a sight of them again. They told us they were ever so sorry for uswe five young bediess boys—but that they would not run any train to Augusta for five days. If we did not believe them we might get on the engine and ride down to Congaree and see the devastation for ourselves. We did not believe them of course, and we piled up on that engine in a jiffy. Better to be down there trying to get over than to go back to Nirginia. What a world of water we did see at the crossing!

For more than a mile the great river spread itself out. On the Smithville side, the bridge was approached by a long embankment, thrown up about four feet and fenced in with plank. At frequent intervals along this embankment, wide crevasses had broken through and utterly destroyed the road-way as for its a the cream as we could see. But we through and utterly destroyed the road-way as far into the swamp as we could see. But we wanted to go home and see the dear old father and mother, and the children of the family.

We held a council of war and admitted to our circle a stranger from Columbia, S. C., who was making his way to Charleston, as he said, to run the blockade for a cargo of goods. His name was Hendrickson, and he carried only a small, black grip-sack. Our plan was to make our way along the broken levee to the bridge if possible, and take the chances of getting over. Our stranger friend was eager to go and readily joined us. For a half mile or more we walked and "cooned" it on planks until we came to a farious torrent of water pouring across a crevasse fifty feet wide.

No possible chance to go over this chasm, and as night was approaching we made a and as night was approaching we made a camp-fire of the plank fence and bivonacked in the midst of the raging waters on a dry section of the road-way.

What a dismai night that was only the surviving form will near know. of the read-way.

What a dismai night that was only the surviving few will ever know.

The falling trees, washed up by the resistless tide, the roar and rush of the terrible flood shut out every other sound. Our friend, Hendrickson, was good company and bore his part of the struggle manfully. He told us where he was going and what he was going for. He had in his grip a tiny pair of baby shees, not larger than your finger—a keepsake, he said—of the little toddler back in Columbia. We had made down our bunks for the night and were making ready to sleep, when a row-boat made its appearance on the lower side of the bank. It was manned by two persons who informed us they had made their way through that sea of weather to make a little money carrying pasengers over to the south side. The boat would only hold the two rowers and two passengers. Would we go over? Not for all the gold in the Bank of England said all of our five. Not even the voices of the loved ones calling to us on the other shore could have induced us to risk that merciless cataract of horrors. Not so our friend with the Scandinavian name. He was impatient to go, and quickly made a bargain with the boatmen to take him over. To the horror of the pitiless whirlpool was added the danger of darkness, for it was now well on to midnight. He bade us a pleasant good-bye, packed np his grip and baby shoes, and stepped boldly into the boat. They pushed out into the angry deep, and that was the last time Hendrickson was ever seen alive by us. We turned into our scanty beds of grass and plank and slept as best we could. Some of us, however, could only half sleep, fancying that, coming to us over the boom and roar of waters, we could hear a cry of distress—some one in the threes of death, calling out to us to help plank and slept as best we could. Some of us, however, could only half sleep, fancying that, coming to us over the boom and roar of waters, we could hear a cry of distress—some one in the throes of death, calling out to us to help them, and that quickly. Was it only a dream? or did we hear? The terrors of that midnight scene have been with us to this blessed hour. We heard the cry, and sat up trying to locate it, out in the dismal swamps. But the sound of many waters made their signal only a feint whisper. In that whisper was the death-cryof the blockade runner—"God help the wife and little one, for I am going down." We could only wait—we could not help him. When the first light of early morning came we saw it all. About two hundred yards out in the swamp, perched high up in a tree, was the surviving boatman of that ill-fated crew. When the boat pulled out from us at midnight it only went a short way before it was swamped in crossing a tongue of the river. One of the boatmen and our friend Hendrickson went down and were lost. The cry we heard was the shouts of these drowning men calling for help. The one who was saved pulled himself up out of the deeps and climbed into a tree. We saw him at daylight and made haste to Save him. We sent a boat and rescued him more dead than alive. We made our way back to Smithville and telegraphed the facts to the mayor of Columbia, who sent a delegation on a special car to the scene of the accident. These good people went to work, and when the waters subsided they got the body of their comrade, and we suppose he is buried with his people. Half our furlough was gone and only one-third the way traveled. By dint of much wading and leaping we reached the main bridge to find it all gone except the upright posts. These we spanned by using the plank fence, and by noon were over. Walking to the first station we bull-dozed an engineer, who had run down with his engine from Branchville, to take us to Branchville where we made the connection for Augusta. Shermafi had devastated the country

Milledge ille, reaching our home the tenth day out.

One day at home, and back we started, the dear old mother loading us down with all the cookery we could haul. Augusta was reached just in time to find Sherman within five miles of Branchville. We sold our box of eatables to a bar-keeper for $400, confederate money, and boarded a freight train that was ordered to get through if they had to fight it out on the tracks. We sat in the door of an open freight car and made forty miles an hour to the junction. They put fifty bullets into our engine and cab, but we got there in time to see the demoralized confederate army rapidly giving way towards Columbia. But the tale is told. We overstayed our furlough three days and when the jig was up at Appomattox there was an indictment against us, and an order for our appearance at a court of our peers to answer to a charge of absence without leave.

The junior judge of the present supreme court issued the order. General Grant ordered a nolle pros. If any one of the five soldiers who forded the Congaree that night is living and should read these lines, please male yourself known to "J. A. Walker.

DEAR SIR—It gives me pleasure to testify to the merits of the Opelika Mineral Water. For three years I had blood poison and rheumatism. My hands were almost a solid sore from impure blood. After using the water for three weeks my hands are well and my health is better than for years. Dr. Lupton, the State Chemist, who analyzed this water, told me it was the best medicinal water he ever analyzed. If this testimonial can be of use to you, you can use it. I am seventy-four years old, and this water is the best blood purifier I ever saw. It will give you an appetite when everything else fails.

F. C. SLAPPY.

From J. W. R. Williams, M. D.

MR. LOUIS CHERRY: DEAR SIR—Having had many of my paients to use the Opelika Mineral Water from your well, I take pleasure in adding my testimony to its utility in many forms of dyspepsia and weak digestion. I do not know a superior Mineral Water to this from your well in a tonic condition of the stomach and bowels.

Persons who have run the gauntlet of the various patent nostrums and routine stomach pre-scriptions of the day will find in this water a relief that will surprise them. Respectfully. J. W. R. WILLIAMS, M.D. Send for circular and other information to LOUIS CHERRY, Opelika, Ala.

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, June 6.—The great feature of the lay in the stock market was Sugar Refineries, and the recent advance in the price of refined sugar, without a corresponding advance in the cost of the raw article, aided in creating a strong tone in the stock at the outset, and later a rumor that Spreckels had come into the trust was the occasion of a rise of about 4½ per cent. Toward the close, however, the rumor was denied, and selling immediately assumed large proportions, and a sudden drop from 84 to 65½ occurred, the business doing at the time being simply enormous. There was a partial recovery from the lowest prices, but the stock is materially lower this evening. The railroad list at first failed to respond to the break in sugar, but it gradually spond to the break in sugar, but it gradually yielded, and in almost all eases the early advances of the former were lost. Chicago Gas was the weakest stock on the regular list, and its close sympathy with Sugar would account for all of its decline, as there was no news of any kind of chareympathy with Sugar would account for all of its decline, as there was no news of any kind of charter to influence values in any manner. Among the specialties there were a few marked movements during the day, but the regular list moved within narrow limits throughout. In early dealings after opening advances were made of from ½ to ½ per cent. Oregon Transcontinental showed up, but further gains were only fractional, outside of a few stocks. Sugar rose 4½, Citizens Gas 2½ and Quicksilver preferred 2 per Citizens Gas 214 and Quicksilver preferred 2 per cent, but these gains were afterward partially lost, and Tennessee Coal was particularly weak, losing and remoster Coal was rather heavy, and final changes, while irregular and for fractional amounts only, show a majority of the losses; and Sugar is down 2%, while Citizens Gas is up 1%. Sales of listed 189,000, unlisted 138,000 shares.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, June 6—[Special.]—The cotton market seems to be settling down to a somewhat nariower range of prices, and today has been the quetest of the week. August fluctuated between 12.67 and 12.12 and closes at 12.09. July has been relatively the weakest month on the list, and the premium on that position has become narrower than for some time. The chances of a corner on either July or Angust seem to be less imminent, and the outside interest, which has become palpably a long one, is now waiting for the reappearance of the manipulated advance upon which they had hoped to float out. New crops are quiet but firm. Liverpool at the opening showed considerable weakness and declined some 2@3 points, but recovered all but 1.64d of the loss upon an advance in silver to 46d in London. Spot sales 10,000 bales. The total Liverpool stock, including stock afloat, is 1,057,006 bales, being 14,000 bales less than last week, but still 80,000 bales over last year. The interior movement for the week is insignificant, and entirely ignored.
